Packer Employees Are Casting Votes To Decide Strike

One Hundred Thousand Employees Are Voting Whether to Accept or Fight Wage Cut.

LOWER WAGE SCALE WILL BEGIN TODAY

Both Sides Have Agreed to Conference Proposed by Labor Secretary, But Expect No Results.

Chicago, March 13.—With more than one hundred thousand employees in the packing industry in all parts of the country balloting on a proposed strike, wage decreases amounting to 12 1-2 and 15 per cent, together with a readjustment of working hours, which were announced last week, will go into effect tomorrow.

Both the packers and union officials yesterday agreed to meet James D. Davis, secretary of labor who offered his service as mediator in the hope of averting a strike. Tonight representatives of both sides said that there was little prospect of an agreement at the proposed conference.

Quote Statement.

Union leaders pointed out that the packers in agreeing to send two representatives to Washington had said that "we assume that the justice and necessity of wage cuts will not be at issue. Nor can there justly be an issue on the matter of hours." According to representatives of the men this left nothing to be discussed.

"We know the packers are hoping that some of our men will engage in a runaway strike tomorrow morning," said Dennis Lane, of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen, "and, in fact, we have evidence that they are aggravating them, endeavoring to entice them into such action. However, the international officers have warned all of our membership to remain on the job until after the vote has been taken and until such time as the international executive board has issued strike instructions.

Will Be National.

"When the strike occurs, it will be national in scope and will have occurred because of the packers repudiating an existing agreement with the government and because of their desire for a strike to accomplish the two-fold purpose of destroying the workers' organization and unloading at profiteering prices the enormous quantities of meat now in cold storage, which they bought at the lowest prices paid for live stock since 1913."

A meeting of the union leaders to take action on the proposed strike will be held in Chicago on Wednesday. By that time the result of the strike balloting will be known, it was expected.

DAVIS AWAITS REPLIES.

Washington, March 13.—Secretary of Labor Davis tonight was still awaiting replies from four of the five leading packers and from packing house employees to his offer of mediation in the controversy arising from the proposed wage cut announced to take effect tomorrow.

Wilson & Co., in a telegram received during the day by the secretary, agreed to the secretary's proposal of a conference between two representatives each from the packers and their employees in which Mr. Davis will participate with Secretaries Hoover, of commerce, and Wallace, of agriculture, in the role of advisers. The telegram reported to have been sent from Chicago by Dennis Lane, secretary-treasurer of the employers' unions had not been received by the secretary of labor tonight.

Secretary Davis is anxious to set the date for the conference as soon as possible and the telegraph offices today had instruction from him to send any telegrams to his hotel. The labor secretary also telephoned the telegraph office frequently, asking whether the expected replies had been received.

Secretary Davis has had experts in the department of labor place before him all data regarding packing industry labor and spent a major portion of the last three days digesting the information, arriving at his offices in the morning at 7 o'clock to be ahead of the daily seige of patronage seekers and remaining until as late as 8 o'clock at night.

Church Is Crowded As Hardings Attend Morning Services

Executive Couple Go to Calvary Baptist Church for First Worship.

Washington, March 13.—President and Mrs. Harding Sunday realized that even when they attend church there must be certain restrictions laid down that tend to embarrass the sympathy each has for simplicity.

And, with the realization, there came just a trace of annoyance in the face of the president as he entered the Calvary Baptain church for the morning services. As he stepped from his car he was surprised to see a great throng of churchgoers held up in two ailes established by secret service men. He hesitated for a moment as if surprised and disturbed that there should be any checking of the progress of the people into church and then went on in with Mrs. Harding.

Dr. J. Stanley Durkee, president of Howard university, occupying the pulpit, offered prayer for the president, Mrs. Harding and those in all branches of the government. His sermon, based on Psalms 1-27, constituted an appeal for righteousness in all walks of life. He made no reference to politics or current controversial questions.

After dinner the president walked about the rear yard of the mansion, inspecting the grounds for the first time since he entered office.

Sunday was a day of parades before the homes of both President Harding and former President Wilson. A constant stream of automobiles and thousands of people flocked through the grounds of the white house from morning to night.

The narrow thoroughfare upon which Wilson's home faces was congested throughout the day as sightseers flocked out in the hope of getting a glimpse of the retiring executive.

ARREST EXPECTED IN MYSTERY CASE

Doctors Unable to Give Initials or Address of Man Who Had Wound in His Arm Dressed.

Although failing to obtain any information of value concerning the identity of the mysterious Shultz, who Friday night went to the home of Dr. I. H. Etheridge, 148 Pulliam street, to have a long cut in his arm dressed, county policemen and city detectives probing into the fight at Lakewood which resulted in Fred Thompson, who conducted a vulcanizing business in West End, being cut to death, found new and valuable clues Sunday which made them feel confident of the early arrest of the other men in the case.

Dr. Etheridge, at whose home the mysterious Shultz called to receive medical treatment, was out at the time. Dr. L. W. Wiggins, who lives on South Pryor street, was summoned to the house, and he sewed up the gash. Dr. Etheridge came home just as he was finishing up, and neither asked the man how he got cut, his initials nor his address. They told the officers that they had not seen the men before, so far as they knew.

Held Without Bail.

J. C. Thomas, of South Boulevard, who surrendered Saturday to Deputy Sheriff James D. Bazemore, and told him that he was probably the man who cut Fred Thompson to death, is being held without bond pending the coroner's inquest. He claims self-defense and stated he was taken away from his weiner stand at 280 Decatur street, by four me, who came there in an automobile, representing themselves as police officers, and told him that he would have to go with them to Police Chief L. Beavers' office to straighten out some matters pertaining to some checks upon which payment had been refused by the bank.

Thomas stated that, believing they were officers, he got into the machine with them and when they started in the opposite direction of the station house, they explained that they had to go after another man before returning. Upon reaching the lonely spot at Lakewood he was seized and taken from the machine, he stated, and held firmly by two men, while another unwrapped a long and heavy strap while the fourth held a pistol leveled at his head.

He said they referred to anonmymous letters they had sent him, telling him he would have to provide better for his wife and family, the letters being signed, "Eyes of 1,000 Real Men," they asserted, he claimed, that he had failed to heed the warning and that they had come expressly to make good their threat.

Believed Life Endangered.

Believing his life endangered, he stated, he jerked loose from the grip of the man who held his right hand, grabbed his knife out of his pocket and opened it quickly, plunging it into the arm of one of the men who held him.

He is also under the impression that he cut this man in the right thigh. He then asserts that he turned upon the man who was holding his left hand, and slashed him several times. He says this man, who is believed to have been Thompson, had an open knife and was doing his utmost to cut him.

During the course of their investigation into Thomas' record it is claimed that officers have learned that he had been before the recorder's court on charges of non-support of his wife.

While admitting that she probably did not have some of the comforts of life to which a wife might be entitled, Mrs. Thomas is said to have protested her loyalty to the husband, and was unable to account for the interest in their domestic life that outsiders are alleged to have taken.

DEATH OF KINSEY IS LAID TO MATHIS BY CORONER'S JURY

Attributed to Pistol Wounds Inflicted by Man Now Held in Fulton County Tower.

FINDING OF BODY CLIMAX TO MYSTERY

Excitement Reigns in Chattooga, Following Discovery of Charred Remains of Mail Carrier.

Lyerly, Ga., March 13.—(Special.) "We the jury, empaneled and sworn E. Kinsey, find that he came to to inquire into the death of Lewis his death by wounds from pistol shots in the hands of Clint D. Mathis."

The foregoing verdict was rendered this afternoon by the coroner's jury investigating the cause of the death of Kinsey, former mail carrier, whose dead body was found Saturday in a lonely wood four miles east of Summerville.

A forest fire had almost burned the head from the body, which was hidden under a brush pile.

Post-morten examination revealed the fact that five bullets had entered Kinsey's body and his head had been crushed by some blunt instrument. The murder of Kinsey is the most brutal that has ever occurred in Chattooga county, and the people are greatly incensed over the affair.

Burial was held this afternoon in the Summerville cemetery following a brief service at the grave.

Sensational Case.

The verdict reached Sunday afternoon charging Mathis with the death of the former Summerville mail carrier, comes as a climax to one of the most sensational cases that has developed in north Georgia in some time.

Some weeks ago Kinsey suddenly disappeared from his home in Summerville, and when no trace was found of him for some time, foul play was feared and an investigation started.

Mathis, who is said to be the last man seen with Kinsey prior to his disappearance, was arrested and placed in the jail at Rome for safe keeping, and was later transferred to the Fulton county Tower, where he is now held.

The case became exciting when an anonymous letter was received in Summerville directing friends to drag a certain pond in the vicinity of the town if they cared to recover the body. The pond was dragged, but no trace was seen of the body.

Saturday the body was found in the lonely wood described in the above dispatch, where it had probably lain for some time. The clothing was burned and the head almost severed from the body by the effect of the flames of a forest fire.

Will Be Killings, But Not Murders, Says Police Chief

Chicago, March 13.—Inability of the police to cope with the political murder feud in the nineteenth ward here Sunday resulted in the transfer of every policeman in the district. More than 700 police were sent to other stations by Police Chief Fitzmorris and an entirely new personnel installed in the Maxwell and Des Plaines street stations. This is the biggest police shakeup in Chicago in decades.

The order came after three political murders, alleged to have been committed by partisans of Alderman John Powers and his rival for power in the nineteenth ward, Anthony D'Andrea, were committed in this district in one week. Chief Fitzmorris called both Alderman Powers and D'Andrea to his office Sunday.

"There will be no more murders in the nineteenth," he told them. "There will be killings, but the police will do that."

Augusta Aviator Kills Aged Woman On Florida Beach

Jacksonville, Fla., March 13.—Mrs. A. Wollenkoff, 70, of Vanwert, Ohio, was killed almost instantly today at Pablo Beach when an airplane driven by Monte Rolfe, of Augusta, Ga., struck her.

Rolfe, with two passengers in the machine, was attempting to make a landing on the beach, and apparently did not see Mrs. Wollenkoff, who was stooping to gather sea shells. The plane struck her in the side, and she died a few moments later. A deputy sheriff took charge of Rolfe pending an investigation of the accident.

1,608 U. S. Soldiers Arrive Back Home After Giving All

New York, March 13.—The bodies of 1,608 American soldiers who died in France during the war arrived here today on the transport Somme from Antwerp.

Five hundred and eighty-seven soldiers, who have been serving in the American army on the Rhine, returned on the transport, which will dock tomorrow.

Three Cornered Battle Is Waged In Liquor Raid

White Man and Negro Captured and One Negro Is Wounded.

Pistols barked their menace from the north. Revolvers spat their leaden fury from the south. Automatics roared in sinister staccato from the east. Only the wild and woolly west was silent.

This is the story of the three-cornered combat of Saturday night as related Sunday to United States Commissioner W. Colquitt Carter. The belligerents, according to testimony before that official, were W. A. Smith, Red Oak farmer; A. D. Buttrom, a negro of agricultural occupantion, and their associates, and Federal Agent W. E. Drautzburg and his party of officers sworn to crush, stamp out and otherwise prohibit liquor traffic.

The testimony developed that the three-fold fusillade was a mistake, anyhow. There was supposed to be a corn-liquor delivery, according to the officers, in which Smith, on the one hand, was to deliver, and three negroes in the other auto were to receive the liquor.

When the officers arrived they say that Smith suspected that the occupants of the other car had informed the authorities, while the negroes were just as positive that Smith was responsible. And then the battle started between the two parties—a battle in which the officers were not overlooked.

They were arrested in Clayton county by the government men. A tip had been furnished the federal officers that a liquor car would transfer whisky into another automobile at a point on the Fairburn road, and they got there just as the transfer was taking place, they say. There were three men in each car—one white man and two negroes in the delivering car and three negroes in the car receiving the liquor.

A negro in the delivering machine is said to have leveled his gun at Officer Drautzberg but a negro in the receiving car opened fire and hit the other black, it is believed. The wounded man was one of the four who escaped.

During the melee, in which more than 30 shots were fired at the officers, one of the machines and its occupants escaped, and Buttrom fled into the woods, pursued by Officer Drautzburg, who captured him after a chase of a quarter of a mile.

Commissioner Carter held Smith and Buttrom under $300 bonds each.

CORDELE QUIET; NO ATTACK STAGED

Guardsmen Remain on Duty All Night and Train Crew Leaves Sunday on Schedule.

Cordele, Ga., March 13.—(Special.) The raid upon Cordele by alleged union employees of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railway to attack a crew of strike-breakers who brought a train over the line into Cordele yesterday, failed to materialize last night, and the same crew drove its train out of Cordele Sunday morning without a sign of violence.

The Crisp national guards were mustered out Saturday afternoon when the report of the pending attack became current and, after the sheriff and Governor Dorsey had talked the matter over by long-distance phone.

It was understood that thirty or more cars of union men intended coming into the city to "get" the non-union men, and an extra force of deputies was sworn in and the guards placed in custody of the train crew.

The attackers failed to show up, and quiet reigned throughout the stay of the train crew. The guards remained on duty throughout the night at the armory.

NO BASIS FOR ANY FEAR OF ATTACK, CLAIMS HOGSED.

Denying absolutely that there was any basis for the fear entertained Saturday night that union sympathizers from Fitzgerald would meet a passenger train of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railway at Cordele and do violence to the crew of strike breakers handling the train, J. B. Hogsed, one of the strike leaders in Atlanta, last night said that the story from Cordele that the militia had been called to protect the train crew was nothing more than an effort to prejudice the public mind.

When told of Mr. Hogsed's statement Sunday night, Colonel B. L. Bugg, receiver for the A., B. & A., declined to comment in any way upon the matter, disclaiming any knowledge of the Cordele situation and refusing to be quoted with reference to it.

"We have positive information," declared Mr. Hogsed, vice grand president of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, and secretary of the A., B. & A. strikers' organization, "that no injury to anyone running an A., B. & A. train was contemplated by the union men. We shall be able to show that there were no strikers leaving Fitzgerald Saturday in automobiles or otherwise to meet a train of the A., B. & A., at Cordele or any where else. The fear of the railway officials was utterly without grounds.

Hogsed's Statement.

"In fact," he continued, "the union men in Fitzgerald and at Cordele knew nothing about the incident of the militia until they were called by the strike headquarters here and informed of the story appearing in the newspapers here regarding the calling out of the military company.

"The report was an effort, we believe, to prejudice the minds of the people against us. This strike has been, perhaps, the most orderly one ever held in this section of the country, and because of the fact that the men have been daily cautioned against being led into anything that would compromise our side of the movement and hurt us in the minds of the public, the railroad officials have evidently found

FURNITURE STORE BLAZE IS FATAL TO FIRE FIGHTERS

Fifteen Injured and Others Reported Missing in Sunday Afternoon Blaze in Richmond.

DAMAGE IS ESTIMATED AT HALF A MILLION

Four Firemen and One Unidentified Civilian Included in List of Known Dead.

Richmond, March 13.—Five are known to be dead, two missing and a score injured, six of whom are in hospitals, as a result of one of the most destructive fires in this city in years.

Four of the five dead were members of the same company of firemen. They were on the roof of a building adjoining the six-story establishment of the Charles G. Jurgens' Furniture company when a back draft caused an explosion which blew out the wall between the two buildings and crumpled the roof of the adjoining building. The fire fighters were precipitated to the street, being buried alive beneath the debris. Their bodies, charred in some instances almost unrecognizable, were dug from the ruins by their comrades.

Several of the bodies were identified by means of rings and other jewelry.

The entire fire department was called out to fight the blaze, which threatened to spread to other buildings. For a while much of the retail shopping district known as Broad street, the principal retail business artery of the city, was threatened. Sparks from the principal blaze were carried to other parts of the shopping district and several other fires were nipped in their incipiency.

It is estimated that not less than 10,000 persons witnessed the work of the firemen, which at times was spectacular. Street car traffic was suspended in the neighborhood of the blaze for several hours and telephone service was crippled on account of the falling wall which carried the wires down with them.

The damage is estimated at between $350,000 and $500,000. Public Safety Director Myers has ordered a thorough investigation of the construction of the buildings in an attempt to fix responsibility for the deaths.

The men known to be dead are:
Grover C. Richardson, fireman.
C. R. Guthrie, fireman.
Ben Garrison, fireman.
—. —. Johnson, fireman.
An unidentified citizen.

RICHMOND BLUES HELD UNDER ARMS

Racial Troubles in Virginia Capital Believed Cause of Order to Assemble Company.

Richmond, Va., March 13.—One company of the Richmond Light Infantry Blues has been mobilized in its armory here, presumably in connection with the race situation. The officers state they have no fruther orders than to assemble the company, the adjutant general and governor have not been located to learn what the orders are.

It is reported that many whites in the eastern section of the city, in which a white woman was criminally assaulted in her home, while her husband lay helpless at her side, with a pistol pointed at his head, by two negroes, have armed themselves.

A mass meeting of white citizens was held Sunday afternoon, at which time several hundred dollars was pledged to be offered as rewards for the apprehension of the blacks. None of the negroes and one white man who have been arrested on suspicion of being guilty of the crime, have been identified. Most of them have been released. Two still being held, but not fully identified, were arrested at Norge, Va., riding a blind baggage on a Chesapeake and Ohio train, which subsequently was wrecked at Williamsburg, Va. One of them had a pistol and a black handkerchief about his person. The negroes who attacked the white woman yesterday wore black masks or handkerchiefs. There has been no disorder today, though two reports of robberies were reported to the police tonight.

Memorial Services In Madrid Churches For Slain Premier

Madrid, Spain, March 13.—Solemn services will be held in all the churches in the city on Monday in memory of Premier Dato, who was assassinated. Following this, his successor will take the oath of office before King Alfonso.

The proprietor of a furniture factory in Valence was fired upon by a group of men as he was stepping into an automobile. He was seriously wounded and a servant who accompanied him was also wounded.

Several persons believed to have been implicated in the assassination of Dato have been arrested at Barcelona.

Women of Dublin March in Protest Against Hangings

Kneeling Before Prison Walls, Thousands Recite Rosary and Leave in Silence.

Dublin, March 13.—There was a striking demonstration here today in protest against the execution in Mount Joy prison tomorrow of six prisoners who are accused of complicity in the killing of intelligence officers and participation in an ambuscade.

Banners bearing such legends as "England murders the innocent in vengeance," were borne through the streets in a procession arranged hastily by women overnight. The procession started at noon from St. Stephen's green, and the paraders marched four abreast in military order in complete defiance of the military regulations. They received constant accessions in strength from women and girls coming out of the churches, and also were joined by thousands of citizens, including many hundreds of Irish volunteers. There was no interfference from the police.

Reaching Mount Joy prison, where the condemned men are incarcerated, the women lined up two deep alonf the prison wall and planted their banners opposite the gates. Then they knelt and recited the Rosary, after which they silently dispersed.

Men Are Composed.

The lord mayor of Dublin and Father O'Flannagan visited the condemned men this morning. They reported that they were facing their fate with composure.

Throughout Saturday night the condemned men, who are paired off in cells one above the other, sang Irish songs.

The lord mayor was officially informed tonight that the government had decided that the law should take its course in the case of the six prisoners in Mount Joy prison. In consequence, the executions will be carried tomorrow morning.

The Irish labor party has issued a proclamation to the workmen of Dublin to abstain from work until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning and to observe the period of inactivity in solemn mourning as a protest against the execution of the prisoners.

Whelan, one of the men who are sentenced to die, has two brothers in the United States, one of them in the army.

WILLIAM BLAMES WAR ON BRITAIN

Former Kaiser Has Written Book for Private Distribution, Trying to Shift War Responsibility.

The Hague, March 13.—In the book he has written for private distribution in an attempt to show that Great Britain was responsible for the world war, former Emperor William, of Germany, throughout always speaks of himself in the third person. He paints William II. as a man who tried for thirty years to maintain peace in Europe, but says he was foiled by the perfidious machinations of Great Britain, France and Russia.

As long ago as 1905, the former kaiser says, he tried to found a league of nations.

Although no full copy of the book is yet available, and both the former emperor's entourage and the Dutch and German governments are worried because of the publication of brief extracts from it, sufficient of the contents of the volume have leaked out to indicate the general trend of the entire book. The leak was principally due to the Berlin correspondent of The Rotterdam Maasbode.

Begins in 1884.

The correspondwent says the book begins with notes as far back as 1884 (William succeeded his father as king and emperor in 1888).

"In some places," says The Maasbode's correspondent, "the document is very interesting, especially notes of August 18, 1901, when he treats of the visit of William to Czar Alexander III. at Narvik, when the czar said he hated the French republic and wanted to restore a monarchy in France. But already, says the kaiser, a Russian-French military agreement had been negotiated, saying that in the event of the mobilization of any member of the triple alliance (Dre Ibund) a mobilization of French and Russian forces would be ordered immediately and their armies thrown into action at once."

Under date of April 18, 1898, the former emperor wrote:

"An English proposal for an alliance of Germany against Russia is declined in order not to endanger the world's peace.

"At the same time Delcasse (then French minister of foreign affairs) proposed to the German ambassador in Paris a German-French agreement in order to prevent the Portuguese colonies falling under British influence. The proposal was not answered."

Drafted League Project.

The former emperor also claims that he drafted a project for a league under date of March 24, 1903.

"A proposal," says the book, "was made by the former kaiser to the czar and to Witte (then Russian foreign minister) to found a league of nations consisting of the triple alliance and the French and Russian alliance, with the understanding, also, that other groups or separate countries may become members of the league. The proposal was accepted by the czar and Witte.

POLICE STIRRED BY BLOODY WORK OF BOLD BANDITS

One Murder and One Man in Hospital Is Atlanta's Record for Twenty-Four Hours.

$500 REWARD OFFERED FOR SIEGEL'S SLAYER

Officers May Be Taken From Day Watch and Put in Plain Clothes to Work Other Watches.

Stirred by the killing Saturday night of Sam Siegel, merchant, at Auburn avenue and Hogue street, and the wounding Sunday night of George Ferris, of 308 South Forsyth street, by negro bandits Police Commissioner Andy R. King Sunday night expressed the belief that some stringent policy would have to be adopted again by the police department to check these footpads who are again terrorizing citizens and endangering lives.

Friends of Siegel called Sunday on Solicitor General Boykin to notify him that they had raised a fund of $500 as a reward for the capture or clues leading to the capture of the murderers.

When holdups were so numerous just before Christmas Chief Beavers issued an order taking fifty men off the day watch and detailing them to work in plain cloths on the evening and morning watch. As a result of their work approximately 25 footpads were arrested and convicted. A similar plan will very probably be put into effect this week to meet the present emergency.

Shot by Highwayman.

Farris was walking down Decatur street about 9:30 o'clock Sunday night when a negro, who he described as being about 6 feet tall and weighing probably 175 pounds, approached and commanded him to throw up his hands. Ferris started to run and was immediately shot by the negro. The ball entered the left leg, inflicting a serious wound.

This occurred within three blocks of police station—at the corner of Pratt and Decatur streets. A negro who happened to be near the scene ran to police station and informed the officers.

Call Officers J. H. Davis and W. W. Evans rushed to the scene, taking the negro informant with them, but no clue as to the bandit's iden-

PROGRAMS MAILED FOR BANKER MEET

All Bankers of Georgia Expected to Attend Important Convention in Macon Next Week.

Macon, Ga., March 13.—(Special.)—Copy of the official program for the joint annual convention of the Georgia Bankers' association and the Country Bankers' Association of Georgia, which is to be held in Macon on March 22, 23 and 24, has been sent to every banker in the state.

It is expected that nearly all of the bankers will attend this joint convention, inasmuch as it has been called for the express purpose of discussing financial ways and means for the business of the state during the coming year.

The period of business depression through which the entire country has recently passed, said officials of the association on Saturday, has left the credit margin and the capital of many business undertakings somewhat depleted, and it is felt necessary for the bankers to carefully plan how to meet this situation.

The greater part of the sessions of the conference will be executive, as it is felt advisable that the bankers themselves feel at full liberty to discuss their problems with the utmost freedom. J. E. Frizzell, of Waverly Hall, president of the Country Bankers' association, will make the opening address at the opening session on Wednesday afternoon. He will be followed by Courtney Thorpe, of Savannah, who will present the city banker's viewpoint after Mr. Frizzell has spoken from the country banker's side.

There will be a banquet on Tuesday evening, and an "agricultural luncheon" on Wednesday.

Leading bankers of the state will make addresses, and every banker who attends will also be expected to join in the open discussions and tell his problems and make suggestions for the benefit of the full attendance.

Rail Union Chiefs Ask Investigation Of Rail Situation

Chairman of Senate Interstate Commerce Committee Urged to Back Congressional Inquiry.

LABOR'S CO-OPERATION IN PROBE ASSURED

Situation Described as "Unjustifiable and Unnecessary" in Telegram Sent to Senator.

Chicago, March 13.—Railroad labor Sunday appealed for a congressional investigation of the railroad situation.

In a telegram to Senator A. B. Cummins, chairman of the senate committee on interstate commerce, President B. M. Jewell, of the railroad department of the American Federation of Labor, and six other union heads, requested "a thorough investigation as to what is wrong with the railroads and who is responsible for the present unjustifiable and unnecessary situation with which the American public is now confronted."

Senator Cummins was assured the co-operation of railroad labor in such an investigation.

Labor is expected to make its reply to the carriers Monday before the labor board on the charges that the national working agreements are forcing the roads into bankruptcy.

That this hearing will not proceed very far without fireworks became known Sunday. Frank R. Walsh will ask the board to subpoena General W. W. Atterbury, vice president of the Pennsylvania road; Thomas De Witt Cuyler, chairman of the Association of Railway Executives, and Carl G. Gray, president of the Union Pacific road. The request for the subpoenaing of these men was made by Walsh recently. The labor board, so far as known, has not done so, although it may be done. Walsh and President Jewell are expected to refuse to proceed until they are subpoenaed.

The labor representatives hope to show, it was stated, by forcing these men to submit to cross-examination, that the carriers were committed to opposition of the formation of adjustment boards through the efforts of one man. This, they say, is responsible for much of the trouble the railroads and employees are having over the national agreements.

LEAGUE IS TOLD NATIONS ACCEPT U. S. MEDIATION

Geneva, March 13.—The league of nations today published dispatches exchanged between Panama and Costa Rica and Sir Eric Drummon, general secretary of the league, in which the two republics notified Sir Eric that they had accepted mediation by the United States in their frontier dispute and that hostilities have ceased. Sir Eric, in replying, expressed the pleasure of the council of the league of nations at the mediation of the United States, which, he said, seemed a good way of bringing about a settlement of difficulties of two members of the league of nations.

Panama and Costa Rica each hold the other entirely responsible for the difficulty along the border between the two republics.

Panama reiterates her refusal to recognize the decision of Chief Justice White, of the United States supreme court, in delimiting the frontier and reserves the right to demand an indemnity for the expenses of defensive expeditions. Emphasis is laid on the fact that Costa Rican prisoners and wounded are being well treated by the Panamians in conformity with international agreement, "and as is proper in a chivalrous country."

Costa Rica in reporting its acceptance of American mediation says "the conflict has virtually terminated."

KIDNAPING OF BOY TOLD IN MESSAGE SENT HIS FATHER

The kidnaping of A. J. Dutton, 12-year-old son of Claude Dutton, whose address is care of L. J. Lawless, in Early, Ga., was announced in a telegram from Canton received Sunday by the boy's father, who was in Atlanta at the time. The Canton police department reported that no report of a kidnaping had been received up to late Sunday night.

The kidnaping of the boy was reported in a telegram sent to Dutton by A. D. Farr, of Canton. The telegram read: "Nell very sick. Somebody has kidnaped A. J. Come at once." The father left immediately for Canton.

Those believing that they have information regarding the affair are urged to communicate with Mrs. Jassie Dutton, 6 Dallas street, Manchester, Ga.

GAS AUDIT WILL BEGIN THIS WEEK

Expenses of Work Are Being Borne by Members of the Georgia Railroad Commission.

C. Murphey Candler, chairman of the Georgia railroad commission, stated Sunday that the commission's audit of the books of the Atlanta Gas Light company, will be started this week.

The audit will be conducted at the personal expense of the commission, whose intentions became known through a statement of that body made public Saturday.

The chairman stated that the members of the commission have agreed to individually bear the expense of an audit of the gas department of the Georgia Railway and Power company from January 1, 1920, to March 1, 1921, and have employed the firm of Haskin & Sells, certified public accountants, of New York, to make the audit under the personal supervision of their Atlanta manager, L. C. Matthews.

He said that the commission is also making an effort to find a way in which to have an appraisal of the gas properties made should the expense not be prohibitive.

The rail board, according to Chairman Candler, is also instituting a careful and full inquiry into the present and probable prices of coal, oil and other materials entering into the manufacture of gas, and into labor wages, both common and expert.

Pending reports on these investigations the commission on Saturday declined to reopen the recent gas rate decision of that body, which has been the subject of protest by many citizens of Atlanta and suburbs.

LONG MATEWAN TRIAL NEARS FINAL HOURS

Famous Battle Trial, With 17 Defendants, Begins Forty-Second Day.

Williamson, W. Va., March 13.—The Matewan battle trial resulting from the fatal street fight last May in which 17 mountaineers are the defendants, has approached its final stage. It is believed by those figuring in both the prosecution and the defense that before another week passes the fate of the accused men will be in the hands of the jury.

Tomorrow, when the state resumes its rebuttal testimony, the trial will have reach its forty-second day. Much of that time was consumed in obtaining a jury. One thousand names were drawn, five hundred men summoned and nearly three hundred examined before the panel was completed. Attorneys connected with the case say it is the longest and most important in the history of the state.

Judge R. D. Bailey announced today that the April term of court would begin immediately after the completion of the present trial. The docket for the April term contains several cases connected with the industrial situation.

SAVANNAH PARENTS PANICKY AS CHILD DIES OF LOCKJAW

Savannah, Ga., March 13.—(Special.)—Announcement was made Saturday that little Laura Elizabeth Newton, four-year-old child, had died from lockjaw superinduced in some manner by vaccination. The report created a sensation among Savannah people, especially those who have small children as yet not vaccinated, for the health officer had issued strict orders for universal vaccination and thousands of arms and legs in Savannah are bearing evidence of compliance with the rule.

Dr. W. F. Brunner, health officer, Sunday, however, investigated the case, and officially announced that the tetanus resulted from infection contracted in a stable near the home of the child, and the death certificate by the attending physician so indicated.

the district known as Back o' the Yards this afternoon. The marchers bore banners, some of them reading as follows:

"Must labor pay the debt?" "Making the work-day longer, makes more unemployed." "Was the war for democracy a failure?"

Later there was a mass meeting addressed by union leaders who urged the men not to precipitate a premature strike but to await the results of the strike ballot which they said would be known by Friday at the latest.

OMAHA MEN NOT TO STRIKE.

Omaha, Nebr., March 13.—The 8,000 packing house workers in south Omaha will return to their work tomorrow morning regardless of whether the packers' announced wage adjustment goes into effect or not, according to W. J. Burns, secretary-treasurer of the local union and the ranking union official in Omaha, tonight.

"While there is a strong sentiment to strike," said Burns, "they have decided to abide by the instructions of local union leaders."

Officials of the local Cudahy plant said tonight that the wage adjustment goes into effect tomorrow.

"We have received no word to the contrary," M. R. Murphy, manager of the local Cudahy plant said. "If there is to be a strike, there will be a strike."

WILSON COMPANY STATEMENT.

NEGRO IS LYNCHED BY KENTUCKY MOB

Taken From Jail, Prisoner Is Carried Two Miles and Hanged From Tree.

Versailles, Ky., March 13.—Richard James, negro, charged with the murder of Ben T. Rogers and Homer Nave, at Midway, this county, on October 8, last, was taken from the Woodford county jail by a mob early this morning and hanged from a tree, two miles from this city.

The mob, composed of about 50 men, came to Versailles between 1 and 2 o'clock this morning by automobile. A guard was placed around the jail and four men went to the door, aroused John T. Edger, the jailer, took his keys and went to the negro's cell, where they overcame the prisoner after a short struggle in which a blackjack was used by one member of the quartet. James was taken in an automobile to the intersection of the Frankfort and Midway pikes, two miles from Versailles, and hanged to a tree.

The trial of the negro for the murder of Rogers and Nave, who were employed as guards at a Midway distillery, ended Saturday night, when the jury reported to Circuit Judge R. L. Stout that it was unable to reach a verdict. The jury had decided that James was guilty, but could not agree on the penalty.

The two guards were killed while defending the distillery from an attack by a party of armed men who were attempting to remove whisky. James was said to have been a member of the attacking force.

Although feeling has been running high against the negro ever since his arrest, no threats of lynching had been heard. A coroner's inquest will be held Monday. None of the members of the mob was identified by Jailer Edger.

Chained Bodies Of Negroes Found In Yellow River

Newton County Is Much Mystified Over Discovery of Crime Sunday.

Covington, Ga., March 13.—(Special.)—Newton county was thrown into excitement Sunday when it was learned that the bodies of two young negro men, tied hand and foot, fastened together with a trace chain and heavily weighted with rocks, had been discovered in the deep water of Yellow river at Allen's bridge, near Stewart.

A coroner's jury, immediately summoned, was unable to arrive at any motive for the death of the negroes, and their bodies, which were so badly decomposed as to be unrecognizable, were buried on the banks of the river near the spot where they were found. It is believed the negroes were chained and hurled into the water from the bridge.

A young white boy playing at the bridge noticed a foot protruding from the water and investigation revealed the submerged bodies. Dr. T. C. Hardeman, who made an examination, was of the opinion that they had been dead for ten days or more.

Absolutely no trouble has occurred in this county recently to which the death of the two negroes, who are believed to have been about twenty years of age, might be attributed, and people in this vicinity are completely mystified over the occurrence. It is thought probable that the negroes came from Jasper county, as no Newton county negroes are reported missing.

Chatham Proposes To Take Over Strip Of Neighbor County

Savannah, Ga., March 13.—(Special.)—For the purpose of making and maintaining a good road from Savannah into Liberty county across a corner of Bryan county, which has not been able to do much toward making permanent highways, it was last night proposed by the Savannah Automobile club that steps be taken to negotiate the taking over by Chatham county from Bryan, if that county is willing, of a strip of the county which would embrace the desired road. If the project materializes it will be unique in county affairs in Georgia.

Garrett, prominent figure in railroad circles of the south, died here this afternoon at the home of Ex-Congressman John M. Morehead. The body will be taken to Marietta, Ga., tonight and the funeral will be held today.

Mrs. Garrett was born in Marietta, the daughter of George M. and Edna Austin Lacey. She is survived by four children, Mrs. Thomas McClung, Knoxville; Mrs. John M. Morehead, Charlotte; Thomas W. Garrett, Atlanta, and Lacey W. Garrett, Marietta.

Dorothea's Romance

Chapter III. At the Concert.

Dorothea's eyes fairly sparkled. "Oh, Anne," she said happily, "I had a gorgeous time! You should have heard that violinist. He was marvelous! Long after the program was over and most everybody had gone—the real music lovers stayed, clapping like everything, until he came back again. And then, Anne, he played Gounod's 'Ave Maria'. I wish you could have been there. That huge theatre, with just a few people scattered here and there, the lights almost out—and that music! I'll never forget it! And Jimmy is wonderful to go with—he loves music, too. Afterwards, we had tea at the darlingest place and then drove home in his roadster. It was wonderful!"

"Well, I'm glad you enjoyed it," I said smiling, "and I see you and Jimmy Kimball are getting right chummy, calling one another by your first names. But," I continued practically, "weren't you a bit foolish to drive home in an open car in this wind? Your face will be all chapped tomorrow."

"Indeed it won't," said Dorothea positively. "I used Magnolia Balm before I went out today. It's wonderful, I think. It's a liquid powder and lotion combined which both powders your face and keeps it soft and smooth. My face never chaps nor freckles either." Magnolia Balm comes in pink, white, brunette and rose-red—at 75c a bottle. You can get it at most any drug store or direct from the Lyon Mfg. Co. (45 South Fifth St., Brooklyn, N. Y.).

"Jimmy said I had the loveliest complexion he ever saw," Dorothea continued confidingly. "I didn't tell him about Magnolia Balm—but I certainly was glad I always use it."

Well, Jimmy wasn't far from right. Dorothea has a truly lovely complexion—and I see I'm not the only one who admires it!

D. W. GRIFFITH'S "WAY DOWN EAST" AT THE ATLANTA

Announced as the most remarkable production with which the name of David W. Griffith has yet been associated is his "Way Down East," made from the famous stage play of the same name and which will be shown in this city for the first time at the Atlanta theater, beginning this evening at 8:15, and continuing for the entire week, with daily matinees after the opening.

As is expected, the usual Griffith effects and embellishments are said to be found in this latest work in abundance. He will present it here with an augmented orchestra furnishing musical accompaniment which even the most spectacular of stage offerings could hardly afford to offer on tour; digressing from the stage version he will take his audience from the simplicity of countryside to the lavishness of city mansions and thus display in a new series of color schemes an array of elaborate gowns and surroundings typical of wealth. At the end will come the famed terrifying New England blizzard and the break-up of the ice gorge in the Conneoticut river, scenes which in other cities have made audiences grip their seats.

Any play that can enjoy a vogue among American theater-goers for a period of more than twenty years possesses something more than pastoral humor and striking scenes, and "Way Down East" has each season been shown on tour with great remunerative reward even in times when most stage offerings had hard sledding.

To Lillian Gish has fallen the task of essaying Anna Moore for the screen and very likely to posterity. Hers is a more far-reaching and human Anna Moore than the spoken stage drama could permit and is such a persan as has existed almost from the time of Mother Eve and existed in every community on earth where flourishes the vanity and egoism of humanity and the innobility of man. That Miss Gish has made the most of her opportunity in the role is probably best attested by the fact that in New York alone the leading actors and actresses of the day have flocked not once but twice and thrice to view her work and marveled at the same.

Family Doctor Reveals Harding Health Secrets

BY ROBERT J. BENDER,
United News Staff Correspondent.
(Copyright, 1921, by United News.)

Washington, March 13.—Dr. Charles S. Sawyer, personal friend and the man who is to be white house physician of President Harding, is "a high-speed gentleman, with no low or intermediate speeds in the make-up."

This is the reason, he explained in an interview Wednesday, that he "never could be satisfied to stay around Washington merely waiting for Warren Harding to get sick" and with nothing else to do. Both of these reasons figure in the president's decision to launch his private physician on a survey of affairs relating to public welfare, education and social justice with an eye to making recommendations for more unified constructive handling of the whole situation.

Already in High.

Incidentally, the high-speed characteristic has already evidenced itself in Dr. Sawyer's intention to begin conferences even before his nomination as brigadier general in the army has been acted upon by the senate. The first men he will see are the surgeon general of the public health service and the surgeon general of the army.

He obviously regards his duties as private physician to Harding as promising little activity.

"I have seen the Harding family physician," he said, "for twenty-five years, but so far as the president is concerned I have had practically no occasion to serve. The president is a physical giant in splendid condition. He is never sick. He represents today the highest, that is, physically, as well as mentally and morally."

"How do you account for the president's remaining in such splendid condition?" the doctor was asked.

Secrets of Health.

"That is easy," he smiled broadly. "Men become ill, become nervous, get upset because they reach too high for themselves. They are forced to put forth tremendous extra effort. Fatigue comes and leads to mental disturbance. President Harding has never had ambition for himself personally. Hence he has had none of the liabilities which go with such a state of mind.

"Again, many men resort to subterfuges. They lay awake nights trying to figure out how they can avoid doing something they have been pledged to do. President Harding has never done this. He talks to men directly, looking them squarely in the eye and because he carefully decides what he is going to do before he promises to do anything, he is never disturbed by the anxieties of those who promise to do something and then have to try to find a way of not doing it. President Harding meets all problems conscientiously and forms his conclusions after the best evidence has been submitted him. Therefore, he has no worry nor anxiety and has all of the characteristics necessary to maintain a normal healthful equilibrium.

"That is why he has always been well and will continue to be."

POLICE STIRRED BY BOLD BANDITS

tity or his whereabouts could be found.

Siegel Shot to Death.

Siegel was shot to death Saturday night about 11 o'clock as he was closing his store at 284 Auburn avenue to go to his home next door. Two negroes appeared and demanded the money in the cash register and then one of them shot him down without waiting for an answer. After shooting Siegel the negro, afraid that the report of the gun might attract too much attention and result in his capture, fled without making any effort to rob the store.

Several negroes living in the neighborhood heard two shots fired and hurried in that direction. They got there in time to see the fleeing form of a negro that tallies with the height of the one who figured in the attempted holdup Sunday night.

Mr. Siegel was buried Sunday afternoon, following funeral services which were conducted from the chapel of Greenberg & Bond. His widow and a daughter survive him.

Robbery Is Reported.

Another robbery reported to the police Sunday took place in front of 149 Woodward avenue, I. L. Fry, of 106 Cherokee avenue, being the victim.

He was held up at the point of pistols in the hands of two young negro boys and relieved of his pocketbook, which contained about $60. He stated he was walking along Woodward avenue when these two bandits approached from the rear, one jumping in front and covering him with a pistol which he held at Fry's head while his pal ransacked his pockets.

While every agency within the command of the police department was put actively to work in a determination to apprehend these highwaymen, no arrests had been made up to a late hour Sunday night.

GENERAL STRIKE ON IN PETROGRAD

Workers Demand Immediate Convocation of Assembly and Banish All Soviet Officials.

London, March 13.—A general strike has been declared in Petrograd and the workers have demanded an immediate convocation of a properly constituted assembly, according to a dispatch from Riga. All soviet officials are reported to have been expelled from the city.

The soviets have formerly declared war against Kronstädt and Helsingfors and the bolsheviks, fearing an invasion from Finland, are strengthening their outposts along the frontier.

Delegates sent from Kronstadt to open negotiations with Petrograd were reported to have been shot by the bolsheviki.

A courier arriving at the Finnish border from Moscow reports that serious fighting has marked the last few days in that city, with heavy guns employed in street battles.

FORMER ELBERTON SUPERINTENDENT SHOOTS HIMSELF

Elizabeth City, N. C., March 13.—J. Peal Spence, former supervisor of schools in Norfolk, and later superintendent of schools in Elberton, Ga., shot himself through the temple at the home of his brother, Joseph C. Spence, at 6 o'clock this afternoon. Spence, who was 53 years old, locked himself in the bathroom prior to the shooting and, when the door was broken open after the shot had aroused members of the family, he was still living. Physicians stated that he could not live through the night. Ill health, which has been continuous for several years, is assigned as the cause.

SALVATION ARMY GROWTH SHOWN

Commissioner Estill Tells How Forces of Organization Have Spread to Seventy Countries.

That the Salvation Army has spread from one country to seventy; increased its official personnel from 35 to 18,000, with an additional 70,000 members within a period of his 43 years' connection, Commissioner Thomas Estill, commanding the department of the east and south, told a large gathering of Atlantans in the Georgia Baptist Tabernacle yesterday afternoon.

Sunday was Commissioner Estill's 62d birthday and he expressed deep appreciation of the felicitations he received from members of the organization and speakers of the day. These included Mayor James L. Key, Dr. C. B. Wilmer, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, and John A. Manget.

Dr. Wilmer stated that when he first came to Atlanta 21 years ago he stressed the importance of the work the Salvation Army is doing to the members of his congregation and has invited members of the army to appear before his congregation to tell of its aims. The "scum" of society on the one hand and the "dregs" on the other, he said, must be reached, and that the church which fails to acknowledge its debt will die. The Salvation Army, he said, is doing its part in reclaiming the "dregs"—those who sink to the bottom. The inteilectual forces, he added, must do their part and save the "scum" who live in the highest strata of society.

Pays Tribute to Army.

Mayor Key stated that he had always responded to any call from the Salvation Army and that he always intended to. He paid a tribute to the work the army is doing under its slogan, "A Man May Be Down, But He's Never Out."

John Manget, who followed Dr. Wilmer, told of his love for the Salvation Army and of how he had witnessed some of its work when he visited Europe shortly after the armistice. He ended with the declaration that as long as he lived and was allowed to make money he would contribute $500 annually to the work of the army.

Mrs. Estill, wife of the commissioner, and joint commander, spoke on the woman's work of the army, graphically describing her own conversion and the work she was able to do especially among the women in Japan.

In 1877, Commissioner Estill observed, the Salvation Army, then known as the Christian mission, had 25 missions, or chapels, with a personnel of 35 officers, all of which were located in England. Their "bands" consisted of one banjo player known as "Fiddling Jim." The "Christian Mission," the only publication of the organization, had a circulation of 20,000.

Army Work Today.

Today, he observed, the army is actively engaged in relief and Christian work in 70 countries and colonies. It has 11,000 self-supporting stations with a personnel of 18,000 commissioned officers, 70,000 lay members, 27,000 bandsmen, 7,000 boy bandsmen, and is publishing 18 periodicals with a total circulation of 1,350,000 in 25 languages.

In addition to this the army is operating 1,300 institutions for social reform, 800 day schools (mostly in foreign lands) and 100 homes for naval and army men. In New York state alone, he added, the army is now striving to save between 7,000 and 8,000 wayward girls to send them back into respectable society and in many cases to "mother."

Commissioner and Mrs. Estill spoke at a meeting for young people in the Salvation Army hall Sunday night, leaving on a late train for Greenville, where they will spend a few days before going to Washington to inspect the new home there for self-supporting working girls, formerly known as the Dewey hotel. They will arrive in New York the latter part of the week.

Sessions of Ad Men At Great Convention Open to Business Men

Business men of Atlanta will be given an opportunity of attending the business and social sessions of the great convention of International Advertising clubs, which is expected to bring about five thousand delegates to the city next June, according to an announcement made by C. V. Hohenstein, secretary of the local advertising club.

This decision, which was recently made by the Atlanta Advertising club, offers splendid opportunities to business men of the city to hear the unusual educational features to be brought out during the convention, dealing with problems in marketing, advertising and salesmanship, which will be handled by some of the foremost experts in their respective lines. The entertainment and social features are to be produced on a lavish scale, and an opportunity will be thereby presented for the business interests of Atlanta to get more closely in touch with similar interests in other sections.

Officials of the advertising club stated that it was from a consideration of these facts that it was decided not to limit attendance at the convention to members of the Atlanta club and delegates who will attend from other sections of the world.

"I always keep Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets in my home for use when needed. I have given them to my children since they were quite small. They can be given with safety to the smallest child, owing to their being free from any injurious drug. They regulate the stomach, liver and bowels in a mild, but very effective way. I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Pierce's medicines."—MRS. J. B. GILBERT, 212 St. Catherine Street. All druggists.

ATLANTANS PLAN RELIEF OF IRISH

Arrangements for Meeting Tuesday Night at Kimball House Announced Sunday.

The Atlanta branch of the American society for the relief of Ireland held a meeting in the auditorium of the Kimball house Sunday afternoon for the purpose of arranging a program for a mass meeting, in which the organization of teams to canvass the city for the $7,500 fund allotted Atlanta will be perfected. The meeting will be held at the Kimball house auditorium Tuesday night at 8 o'clock.

Plans call for a division of the city into four districts and the organization of one hundred teams, consisting of a captain and two lieutenants, who will be assigned special territories to canvass. It was decided to withhold the selection of a general chairman of the drive until the Tuesday night meeting in order that the main body of the organization might be given a voice in the selection.

The Atlanta movement, which is a part of the national campaign being conducted throughout the United States for the purpose of raising $10,000,000 for Irish relief, is to be carried on from March 15 to March 31, and the funds raised will be disbursed through the American Quakers' society, now doing relief work in Ireland, together with other societies.

At the meeting, which was presided over by M. C. Carroll, Jr., temporary chairman, a telegram was read from Henry C. Boland, member of the Irish republic parliament, who is now making a tour of the United States in behalf of the drive, in which he outlined the causes and purposes of the campaign.

A feature of the Sunday meeting was an address delivered by Mrs. Mary L. McClendon.

An important address is to be delivered by Dr. J. A. Kierman, chief of the tuberculosis eradication division of the bureau of animal industry, at Washington.

Dr. Peter P. Bahnsen, state veterinarian of Georgia, and chairman of the entertainment committee for the meeting, stated that several hundred members are expected to be present. The place and program are to be given out later.

Among the states included in the conference are North and South Carolina, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Virginia, Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana and Georgia.

WILLIAM PLACES BLAME ON BRITAIN

There was no question as to presidential power over this league."

Regarding the mission to Germany in Febrary, 1912, of Viscount Haldane, then British lord high chancellor, the book says:

"German efforts to conclude neutrality with England failed in consequence of the absurd demand for a cessation of development of the German fleet through the curtailment of the building of new ships."

1914 Mobilization.

The former emperor, in the book, deals with the mobilization of 1914. He says this began as early as April of that year, in the mobilization of the English banks in order to get large stocks of gold."

Then, the kaiser continues:

"June: Beginning of preparations for mobilization in England."

"June 15: Russia: Troops called to arms in April and May under the pretense that they were to serve in maneuvers and kept under arms for an outbreak of war."

"July 20: All the Belgian reserve officers have been called to arms."

Regarding the refusal of the suggestion by Russia to submit the Serbian incident to The Hague court of arbitration, the former emperor says:

The proposal of the czar was not approved. Russia wanted in this way to gain time to prepare for war.

"On August 4, Sir Edward Grey (the British secretary) demands of Germany that Germany halt her offensive march of troops in Belgium, or otherwise England will protect Belgium. This was the English declaration of war."

State Will Rest Case on Monday In Hamon Trial

Four More Important Witnesses for Prosecution to Be Put on Stand.

Ardmore, Okla., March 13.—The state of Oklahoma will rest its case in the trial of Clara Smith Hamon, charged with the murder of Jake L. Hamon, republican national committeeman from Oklahoma and oil and railroad millionaire, early Monday afternoon, state's counsel said here tonight. Attorney General S. Prince Freeling, in charge of the prosecution, returned to Ardmore from Oklahoma City tonight for the reopening of the trial at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Introduction of all state's evidence and testimony will be completed tomorrow noon or shortly after, state's attorneys declared. Four of the remaining chief witnesses will be summoned to the stand—Mrs. Jake L. Hamon, widow; Frank L. Ketch, Hamon's business manager; Erret Dunlap, oil man and close business associate of Hamon, and Sam Blair, newspaper man, who is alleged in published statements to have obtained Clara Hamon's story of the Hamon killing, in Mexico, December last. Several minor witnesses, including J. L. McGuire, A. J. Chapman and Frank Adams, also will testify, according to state's counsel.

Unexpected Turn.

An unexpected turn in the tactics of defense counsel, which caused a shifting of the prosecution testimony, changed his announced plans Saturday to call Mrs. Jake Hamon to the witness stand as the first witness, Attorney General Freeling said, adding that he had materially strengthened the state's case through adoption of another formation.

The physical condition of Mrs. Hamon, agitated through her breakdown in court Friday afternoon when her husband's bloodstained and bullet-torn clothes were introduced as evidence, made it almost impossible for her to leave her home Saturday morning, Mrs. Freeling added.

Ketch, Dunlap or Mrs. Hamon will be the first called tomorrow morning, however, the first mentioned probably being the initial selection, the attorney general stated.

To Expedite Trial.

"We hope to expedite the trial as much as possible by the state placing its case within the shortest possible time," Attorney General Freeling stated, "and we hope the defense will show the same disposition. The progress of the trial thus far has been very satisfactory, and if as rapid time is made in the coming week, the case should be in the hands of the jury by date Thursday or Friday, at the latest."

"With the bars down, I cannot tell to what extent she will testify or upon what angles; therefore, I can hardly place any approximate time limit upon my cross-examination," the attorney general replied when asked as to what length he would cross-examine Clara Hamon if she is called to the stand.

Question of Age.

"I am informed in good faith, however, that her testimony will not require more than a half hour's time," he added, although he would not comment further on his own viewpoints.

Defense counsel has not indicated to what length or upon what phases of the case the defendant will testify.

Efforts on the part of state attorneys to establish that Clara Hamon is now 29 years old instead of 27, as has been declared by the defendant and touched upon evidence introduced, became known today.

H. H. Brown, who with Attorney General Freeling is conducting the prosecution, injected this phase into the case in a statement today. The attorney general corroborated the statement, saying state's evidence to be introduced will tend to prove that the defendant is now in her twenty-ninth year, and that at the time she became acquainted with Jake Hamon she was 19 years old.

HAMBY SUICIDES; WIFE EYE-WITNESS

Prominent Sylvester Man, Brother of Two Atlantans, Believed to Have Met Business Reverses.

Sylvester, Ga., March 13.—(Special.)—With only his wife as an eyewitness, A. D. Hamby, 50 years old, widely-known citizen and brother of Dr. W. B. Hamby and Lime Hamby, both of Atlanta, sent a bullet crashing into his brain shortly before midnight Saturday night in the living room of his home here, and died almost instantly.

Mrs. Hamby states that she and her husband were sitting in the room when suddenly he pulled a pistol from his pocket and fired it into the grate without saying a word. His wife asked him what was the cause of the action and stated he would wake up the children, but, without speaking, he turned the revolver upon himself and fired the fatal shot.

Reverses in business are believed to have led to the death of Mr. Hamby. He was well known throughout this section, having been manager of the Sylvester Oil and Fertilizer company for a number of years.

He is survived by a widow and three sons, Walcy, 17, a student at Mercer university; Aleck, 14, and M. B. Hamby, 10; six brothers, Dr. W. B. Hamby and Lime Hamby, of Atlanta; T. L. Hamby, of Smyrna; B. B. Hamby, of Kirkwood; Tandy Hamby, of Alabama; Ben Hamby, of San Antonio, Texas; two sisters, Mrs. Will Kelpen, of Terrell, and Mrs. Tom Dulaney, of Lancaster, Texas, and his mother, Mrs. Mary A. Hamby, of Texas.

The body will be carried to Ennis, Texas, for interment.

TROOPS STILL GUARD SPRINGFIELD STREETS

Springfield, Ohio, March 13.—Although there was no recurrence last night or today of racial disturbances which prevailed here for several days during the past week, state troops remained on guard and restrictions barring citizens from the streets after 6 p. m. and forbidding public assemblages except for church services were again in force tonight. Street car service was stopped at 7 o'clock.

A conference of city and military officials is expected to be held tomorrow to consider withdrawal of troops, provided there are no further disturbances.

HOME SOCIETY PLANS ACTIVITIES OF YEAR

Sam Finley Made Leader of Georgia Children's Workers.

Samuel E. Finley, prominent Atlanta business man, was re-elected president of the Georgia Children's Home society at the annual meeting and dinner held on Friday evening at the Daffodil Tea room.

An important phase of the enlarged activity planned by the child-saving agency was brought out in an address by Mrs. Omar F. Elder, president of the newly-founded woman's auxiliary, who told how her organization intended to expand its membership throughout the state.

Address by Candler.

An address by William Candler, chairman of the society's campaign committee, who was elected secretary of the organization, brought out the fact that Atlanta had subscribed about $25,000 toward the society's support and that the work of providing adequate finances would continue after the present intensive effort of the officers and directors had ended.

The featured speaker of the evening was C. C. Carstens, of New York, secretary and director of the National Child Welfare league. In addition to Mr. Carstens' address, others who spoke were Allan Sweat, of Savannah, a director of the society; Stiles Hopkins, vice president, who paid high tribute to the work of State Superintendent Robert B. McCord; Mr. McCord, who submitted his report for the year, and Sam E. Finley, president.

Through the efforts and co-operation of its members and officers, hundreds of conventions are brought to Atlanta every year.

The list of new members is as follows:

Mrs. Garrett, who was the widow of the late Thomas W. Garrett, general manager of the Atlanta and Florida railroad, had lived in Atlanta and Marietta the greater part of her life, and was associated with religious activities of the two cities, being a member of the Marietta Baptist church for a number of years.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. John M. Morehead, of Charlotte, N. C., and Mrs. Thompson A. McClung, of Knoxville, Tenn.; two sons, Thomas W. Garrett, of Atlanta, and Lacy M. MOOSE WILL INITIATE LARGE CLASS FRIDAY

Officers of Lodge for Coming Year Will Be Nominated at Meeting.

Important business is scheduled for the meeting of the Atlanta lodge, Loyal Order of Moose, which will be held at the lodge room in the McKenzie building, corner of James and Peachtree streets, next Friday night.

This meeting is known as initiatory night, and a large class of candidates is to be introduced to the mysteries of the order. As Secretary Henderson expressed it on Sunday night, when announcing the meeting, "there'll be oodles of fresh meat."

In addition to the initiation work, other business scheduled includes the nomination of officers for the coming year. A number of distinguished visitors have signified their intention of attending the meeting, including Supreme Lecturer William Trickett Giles and a large delegation from the Marietta lodge, I. O. O. M., headed by Judge Sibley and Dictator Jim Anderson.

THREE NEGROES HURT IN CRASH OF TRUCK

Three negroes were injured in front of 876 Ponce de Leon avenue about 8 o'clock Sunday night in an accident. They were Ernest Head and Lucien Bell, who were riding in the motor truck, and Charlotte Wilson, who lives in the rear of 894 Ponce de Leon avenue, and who was waiting for a street car.

The motor truck belonged to the Atkins Park pharmacy, and Head was driving it. It is claimed that the woman ran out in front of the truck, and in an effort to avoid striking her, the driver turned the machine into a pole on the curbing.

Bell sustained a broken left leg and a scalp wound, with probable internal injuries. The negro woman, who is a cook for Mrs. Ben Z. Phillips, was badly bruised about the head and chest. Head was not seriously hurt.

Immediately after the accident Lieutenant of Police J. A. Scott received a request from Sheriff J. A. McCurdy, of DeKalb county, to arrest Head and hold him for the DeKalb county authorities. He has not yet been arrested.

NEGROES JAILED FOR ATTEMPTED STORE ROBBERY

Call Officers J. Hiram Davis, W. W. Evans and W. E. Dodd Sunday night arrested two negroes—James Johnson, 18 years old, and Harry Williams, 21 years old, of 80½ Decatur street—on the charge of attempting to rob the store of the Stag Clothing company at 168 Decatur street.

The officers believe these two negroes are implicated in other robberies about town, and, pending a full probe into their record, they are being held under a blanket charge of suspicion.

ATTEMPTS TO END LIFE

Out of Job, Walter Cash Takes Strychnine.

Walter Cash, 24 years old, of 303 West Third street, took a large dose of strychnine about 7 o'clock Sunday night in an attempt to end his own life. He was rushed to the Grady hospital, where doctors state that his condition is serious.

Cash lived with his sister, Mrs. V. L. Vinson, and, according to her statement, he has been very despondent on account of being out of employment since last December. He was a moulder by trade. She also stated that he underwent an operation about sixty days ago, and that he had been extremely nervous since.

Mrs. Vinson was next door visiting a friend at the time Cash took the poison.

BIG CROWD PLEASED BY COLORED SINGERS

The Baptist Tabernacle, Rev. John W. Ham pastor, was crowded last night to hear the famous Williams colored singers. All lovers of sacred music and plantation melodies left the Tabernacle impressed with their wonderful singing. Jesse O. Thomas, Souther field secretary National Urban league, arranged for the appearance of the singers at the Tabernacle.

Negro Fatally Wounded.

Henry Turner, negro, who lives at 110 West Georgia avenue, was shot in the chest and probably fatally wounded by another negro whose name is not known Sunday night. He was carried to the Grady hospital. Turner is said to have been searching for his wife at the time he was shot.

SHOULD BE CHANGED.

Commenting disapprovingly upon what it calls "a painful interregnum," reference being to the lapse of time that ensues between the election and the inauguration of an American president and congress, the American Review of Reviews makes the point that "when we elect new governors and new legislatures in our states we set them to work with reasonable promptness."

Taking the states as a whole, that is true; but Georgia, unhappily, is an exception.

Our constitutional defect in this particular is considerably more "painful" than is that of the federal government.

In Georgia we elect a governor at the same general election in which the president of the United States is chosen—on the first Tuesday following the first Monday in November—but we choose a governor every two years.

The "painful interregnum" of which the Review of Reviews complains is the approximately four months which pass before the country can begin to realize on the expression of its will at the ballot-box.

The magazine editorial points out, for instance, that between last November 2 and the fourth of March the Wilson administration "lingered on without prestige or influence" by reason of its partisan policies having been repudiated by the masses, and that during which lapse "the whole governmental machinery has been marking time."

Also, that the same thing happened between the election of Wilson, in 1912, to succeed Taft, when the country repudiated the republican in favor of a democratic administration, and when "the republican defeat was almost or quite as emphatic as the recent democratic defeat."

At that time, says this commentator, writing on the eve of the Harding inaugural—

"The Taft administration had lost prestige and influence, so that the Mexican question and various others were in suspense at a time when we needed a government that was functioning with full power of decision and of action. It merely happens that just now the problems of government are more numerous and acute, following a stupendous war, than in any of those previous periods of embarrassment when the country was passing through a virtual interregnum of four months. It is not to our credit that we continue to be the victims of a stupid and clumsy arrangement which could easily be remedied. No other great country thus brings its own agencies of government into contempt. When the Leygues cabinet, for example, lost the confidence of France as represented in the chamber of deputies by an adverse vote on January 12, the new ministry under Briand's lead was installed and at work after an interval of only four days; and this interval was a little longer than is usual in the shifting of French cabinets. . . .

"There is no reason at all why we should not swear in a new congress promptly, and install a new president very soon after his election."

That is true; and certainly there is "no reason at all" why Georgia should not swear in a new legislature promptly, and install a new governor "very soon after his election."

In Georgia our governor and legislature elected early in November, do not take charge of the state government until late in the following June—an interregnum of approximately seven months.

During that long interval it might, and frequently does, happen that the state's affairs rest in the hands of an administration that had sought endorsement at the polls and been thoroughly and emphatically repudiated by the voters.

There is nothing reasonable, democratic nor right about such a system.

Upon different occasions in the past efforts have been made to change our fundamental law in such a way as to provide for the inauguration of a governor within a reasonable time—say, not to exceed two months—following his election.

Various bills to that purpose have been introduced in the general assembly, and the last time it was tried the measure was overwhelmingly passed by the house, only to be killed by the senate.

The legislature that is to be sworn in next June can do no better piece of business for Georgia than to revive this effort, and put it through.

If the legislature passes an act putting the necessary constitutional amendment up to the ballot box, the people of Georgia will do the rest!

FRENCH HEELS.

The appeal of the president of the Illinois Shoe Dealers' association in behalf of the French heel, delivered at a recent shoe dealers' convention in St. Louis, extracts from which we present in another column of this page, is not likely to find favor with the average run of merchants who place human welfare on a higher plane than mere monetary profits.

This man's only objection to the low heel shoe is that it out-wears the extreme shapes; consequently with women generally wearing French heels, the dealers would sell many more pairs of shoes than they would sell were "flat" heels the style.

So, he said to his fellow shoe dealers, "push the fancy stuff (Louis or French heel) even if the Christian associations, the osteopaths and the manufacturers talk in favor of the so-called sensible models."

The absurdity of that argument, to say nothing of its subordination of humanitarian principle to greed for profits, is shown by the fact that leading shoe dealers in Atlanta, are actually urging women to abandon the French and adopt the low heel model of footwear.

They are even going to the extreme of disseminating pro-low heel propaganda in their paid advertisements in the daily newspapers.

And they are doing it because there is really more profit in dealing in the "sensible models" than in the extreme shapes of shoes—profit, if not in immediately acquired dollars and cents, in the form of gratification and pleasure in helping to wean our women-folk away from a fashion that is unhygenic, unsightly, inhumane and barbarous!

The French heel fashion is all of that, and more!

Its tendency is inimical to the requirements of ideal motherhood, and detrimental to the health and physique of the race!

Upon certain social occasions, perhaps, the extreme French heel may be tolerable—though it is never graceful—but for every-day street wear it is ridiculous.

Some of the ultra-French heels that are being worn upon the streets nowadays are as extreme and unsightly as the almost discarded woman's footwear fashion of the Chinese!

There is no more common sense or reason in this modern high-heel fashion than there was in the Elizebethan vogue, that required a woman to constrict her abdomen with iron stays to a point when her waist could be spanned with the forefingers and thumbs.

The Chinese have about abandoned the custom of binding and dwarfing their women's feet.

The tight-lacing of Elizabeth's time has been relegated to the darkness of the past.

The French heel is doomed to go the same way; and the citizen—shoe dealer or whatnot—who opposes its abolition is standing in the way of progress, in the way of physical comfort for our women, and in the way of the best development of the human race. The Atlanta shoe dealers are not built that way.

Even when they rise to the 'European situation," they don't reach an atmosphere in which they can glimpse that indemnity.

Ears are coming back in style, but sweet woman will always regret the gossip she missed while they were banned.

And so we may have "beer as medicine;" and we really don't want to revise Georgia's splendid health record!

Statement is made that there's a book shortage. That ought to let in thousands of would-be authors, so long on the weary-waiting list.

Since Mexico says she wants everything but war, she ought to have everything that she can get, outside of it.

It's hard to resist the lure of woodland and river in the spring season, but it's the call of the cornfield that rings the dinner bell.

A "Bracing" Memory.

Editor John E. Finch, "The Richland Philosopher," hands us this mouth-smacking reminiscence:

"You have often heard it said that the streams in the Happy Land with milk and honey flow. When the writer first went through the Shenandoah valley in the mountains of Virginia, we thought that country was it, or the next station to it. Everybody in that country made apple and peach brandy, with plenty honey and milk to go with it. We sometimes think that we can smell that peach and honey till today!"

"How in the devil will you get a republican ring to square itself?

To the hearts of men,
Which thoughts were best
Sent from my pen?

II.

A tale of Faith's
Clear, guiding light?
Of hope undaunted
Through blackest night?
Or, should our hearts
Together blend
And, softening, help
Some sighing friend?

Ah, tell me, brother,
Which should it be
FAITH? HOPE? OR CHARITY?

New National Budget Bill to Be Pushed by Senator McCormick—Democracy of Harding to Newspaper Men—Strange Anomaly—How Closed Doors Expedite Business.

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON

Washington, March 13.—(Special.)—It is gratifying to know that a new national budget bill will be introduced in the early days of the extra session, and pushed through the enactment. Senator Medill McCormick, of Chicago, will father the new measure, and will make some changes, it is reported, in the Smoot bill that died on the calendar on March 4. Just what these changes are I don't know, as Senator McCormick, is out of the city. To say the least it will provide nice berths for a great many republican creditors; but, be that as it may, a budget system is demanded by improved and more up-to-date business conditions, it will simplify appropriations and put an end to "lost motion" in governmental departments, which is not only expensive in money, but also in efficiency. The people, without regard to politics, will applaud the determination to put budget legislation through.

When President Harding walked out on the great white house veranda at midnight Monday evening smoking a cigarette, and democratically talked to the one hundred newspaper men gathered there to find out what was going on, it seemed like "old times," for McKinley and Roosevelt both used to do that, when the weather was fair, and the night air balmy.

Newspaper men like hospitality. All of the Washington correspondents are "transients" in the sense they "live" somewhere else, but stay in Washington during congressional sessions, or other trying times; and no set of fellows on earth yields more quickly to the home cheer, or resent more vigorously the "cold-shoulder."

President Harding knows 'em. He is one of them, and in making the white house hospitable for them he has gone a long ways in ingratiating himself into the hearts of the boys who can help or hinder him in the great task ahead of him

So it is not unlikely that the newspaper men will be just as much at home rolling around on the white house lawns this summer as they are playing "dominoes" in the National Press club.

It is not generally known, but at the moment when the new secretary of navy, Mr. Denby, entered the navy building to take the oath of office he was in reality barred from the navy department—

For at that moment Josephus Daniels was secretary of the navy, Mr. Denby, a private citizen, was a member of the Navy league and a long-standing feud between the secretary and the league had months before resulted in the members of the latter being officially barred from the department—

Hence, the strange anomaly of a men entering the navy department to become its head who, by official order, effective at the time, was in reality outlawed from the building, had the order been enforced at the moment.

Strange things happen. For not only did the outgoing secretary grasp the hand of his successor with the southern cordiality for which he is noted, but stood with him for the camera man—for which he is also somewhat noted.

And then Mr. Denby, secretary of navy, let down the bars to the Navy league, received its members with open arms, and made an official statement declaring in favor of a fighting navy "as large as that of any other country in the world," which is also frank and refreshing.

Did it ever occur to you how fast the senate works when in executive session? Who ever heard of a senator making a set-speech when the doors are closed and the galleries empty?

All of which shows that even United States senators speak for the benefit of the galleries and press, and not to be heard by each other.

If congress would perform its chamber labors behind closed doors, and with the public excluded from the galleries, it would do more actual work in ten days than it does now in ten months.

That's a fact!

Business, Not Health, in This Shoe Dealer's Mind

Delegates to the tristate convention of retail shoe dealers, recently held at the Hotel Statler, says a St. Louis exchange, "were yesterday told how the vogue of the military or walking heel would in a short time ruin their business if they did not influence their women customers to go back to the Louis or French heel. Several speakers defended the fancy heels because they are not so 'everlasting' as the flat heels.

"Frank P. Meyer, president of the Illinois Shoe Dealers association, spoke feelingly on the results of the demand for military heels. Another season of it would bring the sheriff to the shoe store in the small town, he declared.

"A woman with a pair of flat heel brown shoes and perhaps a pair of white shoes will slip through the whole year in them," he declared. "They will serve for nearly every occasion except evening. Make 'em think the flat heels are out of fashion. I tell my clerks to sell them French heels. I tell customers myself: 'You're a live wire and don't want to ruin the apparent shape of your foot.'

"'Why, I took home a pair of those flat heel shoes to my wife more than a year ago and she is still wearing them, so, you see, I know. We will have to sell three pairs of shoes this year where we sold two last year if we are to get by. And we will never do it selling shoes that last forever. Push the fancy stuff, even if the Christian associations, the osteopaths and the manufacturers talk in favor of the so-called sensible models.'"

Atlanta Votes $8,850,000 Of Improvement Bonds

(From Birmingham Age-Herald).

Hats off to Atlanta! She has broken the spell of pessimism by voting $8,850,000 of public improvement bonds. Of the issue $4,000,000 will go to schools, $2,850,000 for waterworks improvements, $1,250,000 for sewer extension and $750,000 for the Spring street viaduct.

The majority cast for bonds is an inspiration. The vote for them was 21,710 and that opposed 513. That is the same as saying that Atlantans wish these betterments, wish them now and are willing to stand the cost for the common weal.

What Atlanta has done other cities will do. If municipal improvements cannot be gotten at prewar prices, they must be secured at post-bellum prices. The world does not propose to stand still because some things cost more now than they did formerly. If that were the creed of commonwealths there would be no forward movement.

Birmingham will benefit by the Atlanta bond issue because a great portion of the $2,850,000 for waterworks improvements stand for cast iron pipe, which is manufactured here.

Birmingham is not behind Atlanta in progressiveness. This city is building two high schools, has greatly improved her fire department and is to build an auditorium. Bonds for a city hall and library have been floated. It is to be a year of structural activity. Building operations herald the coming of better times.

With a few more cities following in the footsteps of Atlanta and Birmingham an extensive structural program will be inaugurated and men and mills will be busy again.

WOODROW WILSON

Let's place a smile on his face again,
Smooth from his brow the lines of care.
Give him in abundance the love of men;
Shut from his eyes a world in despair.
As a babe seeks the warmth of a mother's breast,
So he appeals for a world at peace.
Now we prepare for the coming guest:
Have all the tongues of slander cease.
Erect a monument in the temple of fame,
On the heart of the marble write the name—

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

AUTOBOYOGRAPHY.

Proem.

Standard authors, that is to say, writers who never confuse who and whom, usually in sert a preface in the beginning of the book, apologetic in spirit and rather fictitious in character, for the preface is obviously written after the book is finished. I wanted to put a preface in "The Autobiography of a Baby," but father put his foot down on the idea, reminding me that babies should be seen and not heard. I also wanted to call that maiden effort "Autobabyography," for I had an eye to the future, but father put his other foot down on this idea. So, all in all, I consoled myself with the reflection that dad is not a centipede and went on with my work.

I am old enough now to be heard. At seven a man has convictions, as well as the measles and earache. Yet I do not care to ignore father's suggestions quite altogether, so I listened to dad's objections to a preface and compromised with him by calling this preliminary talk a proem, and I'll bet not one reader in twenty would have had the faintest conception what a proem might be if we hadn't offered this one without extra charge. To tell the truth, dad and I ran across the word proem by accident while browsing in Webster common.

Now that he is old enough to understand, the author of "The Autobiography of a Baby" feels a little ashamed of the free and unlimited use he made of the first personal pronoun throughout that narrative. At least, he thinks he feels that way, and yet, in discussing the matter with dad, he holds that the honest reader should be less pained by the frequent repetition of such expressions as "I hope" and "I find" than by such weak substitutes as "it is hoped" and "one finds." Be that as it may, "Autoboyography" will be kept as impersonal as father can keep it.

Since hygiene, habits and education are all concerned with the health of the child, some of the following chapters will necessarily touch upon things other than personal hygiene, though in the briefest possible way, with due regard for practicability. Father and I have but one aim in collaborating in this work—to help other fellows along in life.

Thanking you one and all, as the hero says in concluding his curtain speech at the end of the first act, thanking you one and all for your kind attention and for your cordial approval of "The Autobiography of a Baby," we will now present our attempt at solution of that enigma, the boy.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Hair Removers.

Please recommend something which will safely remove superfluous hair from the face. (L. O. D.)

ANSWER—There is nothing you can use which is more satisfactory than a safety razor or an ordinary razor. If you wish to have the hair destroyed, the electric needle in the hands of a physician who does such work, is the only known agent. All preparations purporting to destroy superfluous hair are solvents, more or less irritating, and in no way preferable to the razor.

Iron in Fruits and Vegetables.

Which fruits and vegetables contain the most iron? Do eggs contain enough iron to warrant paying the present price for them? Doctors tell me I am anemic. Am 26, 62, 120 pounds. What would you suggest? (Miss R. A.)

ANSWER—Fine, as far as the doctors have gone. Now let 'em keep on with the examination and find out what causes your anemia. Useless to treat it without knowing the nature of the trouble. I mention some iron-containing fruits and vegetables, but I assure you that anemia cannot be cured by merely taking iron. This element is so widely and freely distributed in foodstuffs that it must be rare that a family dietary fails to supply all the food-iron the body can utilize:

Iron-Ccontaining Fruits—Figs, apples, plums, pineapples, strawberries, raisins, prunes.

Iron-Containing Vegetables—Lettuce, onions, asparagus, tomatoes, celery, spinach, pumpkin.

These foods are also rich in iron: Oatmeal, peas, almonds, egg yolks, whole wheat, walnuts, rye flour.

Today's Talk

TODAY AT SCHOOL.

We got up just as the sun patted at our window. The night, full of velvet tints, passed almost before we knew it. We thought we were to go on a long journey—but the light, touching our eyes at the break of another day, said not.

And so we lifted our rested body from its covers and—got up!

The first thought was that we would have to hurry if we wanted to be on time at school. But being past 40, we said to ourself that school was over.

Just then, however, another thought came to us—that school is forever

And so we will go to school, said we. And we did.

Was the teacher good? And were the lessons studied beforehand and given promptly at call? Did we do everything that we should have done—and did we make somebody happy? Did we have a good time? Did we learn?

Well, we did some things that pleased Teacher very much—and some that didn't. We were sorry not to have been a "perfect pupil," but we were human; we stubbed our toe once or twice, and were caught playing when we should have been "doing our lesson." Teacher was good and kind, though. We like her. She forgave and said she would forget.

The lessons in some of the classes were just a little bit hard. We tried, though, to do them the best we knew. Teacher understood.

We met our mates and smiled with them and tried to do a few little things to make them happy. We were glad that we had to go to school. We told Teacher that we were sorry for all our mistakes and told her that tomorrow we would do better.

And then we went home.

Tomorrow we WILL do better!

What the Stars Predict.

This is a very lucky day.

Under this rule of the stars speculation in real estate should be most profitable.

Conditons are favorable for those who seek employment or promotion.

A health campaign of special interest to men will be inaugurated during the next few months, it is indicated.

Those well advanced in years are ruled kindly by the stars at this time.

Today's Events.

Raymond B. Fosdick, who has been elected to the board of trustees of the Rockefeller Foundation, is of a fine, civic-spirited family, several of whose members have won fame during the past decade. He was graduated from Princeton in 1905, studied law, and in 1908 entered the office of the corporation counsel of New York city to get an insight into the legal business of modern urban centers. His proved fitness for the work of an investigator led to his assignment, in 1913, to visit Europe and study methods of organization of urban police boards, the funds being provided by one of the Rockefeller bureaus. In the presidential campaign of 1916 Mr. Fosdick acted as comptroller of the finance committee of the democratic national committee. The following year he was selected by President Wilson as head of a commission to supervise the recreational facilities of the United States army camps and guard the moral welfare of the enlisted men.

Week-End Wanderings

By Paul Warwick

It may be providence, it may be geographical location, it may be most anything, but the results of whatever it is are the same, and Atlanta, of all cities, undoubtedly is perennially endowed with with the most glorious Sabbaths atop the sphere.

Yesterday, for instance. Never was so much perfection of nature in evidence to preach silent reasons for worship than in the rolling terrian in and about the city. Each year about this time we are privileged to feast our eyes on a certain amount of green of leaf and pink of bloom; but not in years has March brought us such an abundance of vivid colors—even the deep blood-reds of late spring and midsummer are set into the landscape in ruby-like profusion. Pink blooms and yellow blooms and other more mildly colored blooms are splendidly unnoticeable, they are so prevalent.

And the automobilists seem to be achieving an appreciation of it. The greatness of the great outside on Sunday must have been the stimulus to the scores of telephone calls which came to this paper's office, querying about the winner of the automobile given away in the great motor show just closed. Holders of tickets were feeling the sweet call of the road, and they couldn't ride on a numbered coupon.

Practical psychologists would probably teach, with good effect, that this season of the year is the most appropriate for the dissemination of good roads propaganda. If the county, the state or the nation should decide for a colossal roadbuilding program, they could shoot the preliminary works now with great success. Good roads are boons in the springtime.

Except for the fact that things are so beautiful just now that good roads are not absolutely essential to their enjoyment—you can't miss them.

Millinery seems unable to wait for Easter, the usual season when it springs forth on an unsuspecting public and suspecting purses. Already the gay, new colors and the gaily sombre grays are dotting congregations on Sunday. The proper thing this season for the feminine seems to be to bound the garb on each side with gray—gray hat, gray shoes and stockings—the color scheme of the intervening garments apparently are still allowed to run the gamut of female fancy, from heliotrope to pheasant if there is any difference in the two.

One interesting question heard propounded Sunday was anent the whereabouts of the genus "tenhound" on the Sabbath. When he is deprived of the flapping crowds that flock to the soft-drink stores during the week. Some suggest that they inhabit, with more or less pleasure, the lobbies of hotels, swapping cigarette smoke for ice water and ashes for stationery. That may be logical, for it is probable that the Tetley tigers and Ceylon spaniels write all their letters on Sunday, in hotel lobbies. They must have a world of correspondence. But the lobbyists always seemed a bit more settled than the draperies for fizz-store doors; they always seem to have, at least, a vague intention of going somewhere or doing something within the next few hours.

Why is it, that although Mr. Webster provided the English-speaking races with enough words to fill a book as big as the unabridged, thick-papered dictionary, a man who has imbibed freely of spirituous liquors has an ineffable desire to pronounce the word "proposition." It may be the effect of prohibition, but it's a fact, so statistics show that ninety-nine out of every hundred men, who totter into intoxication say, some time before sobriety overtakes them, "proposition." It usually, according to the writer's limited experience in hearing it, said, yes, hearing it, sounds more like "propzish'n," but it always happens.

And 99 per cent of the 99 per cent who say "proposition" habitually, use up the rest of their time in an effort to say "auspicious occasion." There must be a reason for these things.

Bits of New York Life

BY O. O. McINTYRE

New York, March 13.—A page from the diary of a modern Samuel Pepys: Up betimes and to see my wife's picture, which is mighty like; and so away to A. Terhune's to breakfast and was holpen thrice to cakes of wheat with sirrup. And A. played finely on the lute and I ragged him about writing so much fiction that few had a chance nowadays.

Never before have I seen the Jersey Palisades with such beauty and I was under a spell walking down the drive; but, Lord! to turn from the river's fresh breezes to the smells of the petrol wagons. I have come lately to the belief that I cannot work of mornings and do I continue in it I deserve to be undone.

Putting in at C. Phelps Cushing's place at Lincoln square I found the men Galloway, Staton and the Spanish gentleman Rodiguez, playing at poker, but spurned entreaties to join them, having no luck soever at the game. Yet it was a brave temptation.

All the afternoon casting my accounts and reading a little in "Who's Who!" Mistress E. came but she doth smoke so many of the paper cigarettes that I am beginning to feel ill toward her and she talks nothing save scandalous gossip.

In the evening to see "Heartbreak House," no doubt nobly writ, but having no meaning at all for me and I wondered if people were sincere in calling it a truly great play. Walked home in the brave moonshine and felt no fright in the big crowds. And so to bed.

My dislike for the tyrant policeman is casual. In New York they are as a rule great figures—and rarely cowards. A little hunchback cripple was trying to stem the tide of avenue traffic. The big red-faced cop saw him and soon had hold of his arm. He began to recite some humorous incident and when they reached the other curb, the weazened face, unused to laughter, was wreathed in smiles. The hunchback shuffled along in a brighter mood. Not much of an incident—but the kind that banishes the doubt that the world is growing better.

Paris awakening in song has nothing on a block in West Forty-Eighth street. It is filled with voice teachers who begin their instructions early. At first there were protests but finally a court decided you couldn't suppress song after 7 o'clock in the morning and so while many tenants moved out other voice teachers moved in.

Raiders from the narcotic squad went into Chinatown the other evening and raided an opium den. In an old, worn pair of shoes in a corner detectives found $40,000 in bills of $1,000 denomination. The Chinese, who owned the money, was the most surprised man in the world when the police turned it over to him. He had seen the detective find the money, but his face had remained as stolid as that of Buddha. When the money was returned to him there was a flicker of a smile on his face but he offered no thanks.

A new vaudeville house has shortened the name "vaudeville" to "vodvil" in a huge electric sign that spans its front. The word was coined by popular approval from a word coined by pronunciation from a French word. Incidentally there are no actors in "vodvil." They are all artists because the programs say so.

EXPLAINS STAND ON HIGH SCHOOLS

Willing to Perpetuate the Present Plan If It Is Found Best, Says Superintendent Dykes.

Declaring that as superintendent of schools he is only interested in securing for the city what is best for the children, Superintendent W. F. Dykes in a statement Sunday said that if "after a fair-minded, impersonal investigation it is found that the present plan of high school organization is the best, I am just as ready and willing to continue it and perpetuate it as those who are most vitally and personally concerned in its existence."

Superintendent Dykes had expressed himself as favoring the cosmopolitan, comprehensive high school plan, which would do away with the four present special-type high schools, and in their place would be erected two big co-educational institutions, one on the south side and one on the north side, each to embrace all the courses of study now offered by the four high schools.

Met With Opposition.

His plan met opposition from the high school principals and teachers at a meeting held at the Commercial High school Saturday morning. Prof. W. A. Sutton, principal of Tech High school, offered particularly strenuous objections.

"I am not trying to force a plan on Atlanta," said Mr. Dykes. "If the cosmopolitan plan is not the best it should be repudiated, but before being repudiated it should at least be fairly considered."

The statement of Superintendent Dykes follows:

"I should like the privilege of saying that it is entirely immaterial with me personally what plan of high school organization is adopted for the Atlanta schools. As superintendent I am only interested in securing for the city what is best for the children. If after a fair-minded, impersonal investigation it is found that the present plan of high school organization is the best I am just as ready and willing to continue it and to perpetuate it as those who are most vitally and personally concerned in its existence.

"I do not feel that the discussion of a matter of such vital importance to the city is all 'premature.' It must be settled before building plans can be made, and the settlement of it concerns not simply the children of the present but those of the future. Long after those of us who are considering this matter are dead and forgotten the children of Atlanta will be affected by the organization plans we are about to put into operation.

Open Discussion Would Aid.

"A free and open discussion should aid the board of education in reaching a correct decision. It is not necessary to engage in personalities or to impugn the motives of any person involved. We should be able to consider both plans proposed without resorting to inuendo or to propaganda. The board of education will give the people of Atlanta what they want, but it is up to the people of Atlanta to inform themselves as to what is the best plan of high school organization without being swept off their feet by surmises and sentiments.

"Personally, I am not trying to force a plan on Atlanta. If the cosmopolitan plan is not the best it should be repudiated, but before being repudiated, it should at least be fairly considered.

"Just a few points by way of vindicating the proposed plan and I shall probably have nothing further to say in regard to the matter. The plan is by no means original.

"About five years ago Mayor Key while a member of the board of education proposed the consolidation of the four high schools under the management of one principal. The board indorsed the proposal with the sanction and support of the president, Major Guinn, and the consolidation was made. A university high school was planned. It was to have been located at Piedmont park. The project failed, however, because of lack of money and a development of sentiment against using the park for school purposes. The idea of having a university high school seemed to meet with public approval at that time. Conditions have not changed since then, although politics have. Atlanta is no more of an industrial and commercial center now than it was then and our high schools are now doing exactly the same type of work they were doing then.

"In this connection we should not lose sight of the fact that Atlanta is also a great educational center, and that many colleges and universities are located here, also that Georgia is a great agricultural state, and that a university high school or a cosmopolitan high school they are the same, would enable us to more nearly meet the varying demands of our people.

"We should also remember that after all, real education is the development of the mind. Many of our children expect to make their living with their brains and not with their hands. Boys naturally take to manual work and do not need to be urged to it. It is their natural preference. But they need to be encouraged to do mental work otherwise they are inclined to neglect. Technological and commercial training are both valuable and should be offered alike to all boys and girls in the city. With proper educational guidance these courses may be correlated with other courses without detriment.

Stand on Co-Education.

"As to co-education, it may be all wrong. If so, approximately 98 per cent of all the cities in the United States have gone wrong, and every high school in that magnificent section of the United States west of the Mississippi river has gone wrong.

"The comprehensive high school may be wrong, but if so about 90 per cent of the cities in the United States, including the large cities, have gone wrong.

"The best five school systems in the United States, in my opinion, are Los Angeles, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburg and Rochester, N. Y.

"They have the comprehensive high school plan, and reports indicate that the work is more efficient, the morals better, and the attendance larger because of it.

"There is some question about the junior high plan. It is new and somewhat in the experimental state. It has not been fully standardized yet, but the comprehensive high school has stood the test of years.

"It has been claimed that we should not consider the opinions of principals and superintendents in regard to their organization plans. Principals and superintendents are usually chosen from the ranks because of their long years of experience and demonstrated ability, if their opinions are not worth anything it would certainly be absurd to judge a system by the opinion of an individual teacher.

"As to the personnel of the commission appointed by the National Education association to report on high school organization.

"The 26 members are all educators of varied capacity. They are not all high school teachers, and it is not proper that they should be. Some of them are college people who have had occasion to pass on the work done in the high schools and are in position to determine the type of high school that is doing the best work. One of them, however, is principal of a Tech High school of 3,000 pupils.

"As to northside and southside schools—every large city has sectional schools. Only small cities have central high schools. Think of the absurdity of making a child go all the way across town just to keep down snobbery.

"I have nothing further to say, and am ready to enter wholeheartedly into support of whatever plan is decided on, without any personal feelings whatever. I have great respect for Professor W. A. Sutton and I honor him for his manly stand."

PONSELLE WILL SING IN ATLANTA TONIGHT

Work of Great Artist Warmly Praised by Savannah Reviewer.

"Miss Ponselle's concert was certainly the most successful this year and finer than any given last year with the possible exception of one, which is easily challenged," said The Savannah Morning News yesterday, in its review of Rosa Ponselle's recital in Savannah Friday evening.

Miss Rosa Ponselle, the young dramatic soprano of the Metropolitan opera, returned to Atlanta Sunday from Savannah, to rest a day before her concert at the Auditorium tonight, when she and William Tyroler, the pianist, will give the same program they presented in Savannah. An unusually large attendance is expected to hear them, for both artists are exceptionally popular.

Although the Savannah Music club has presented numerous celebrities in concert for the last two years, Rosa Ponselle's voice appeared to have swept music lovers there off their feet. Miss Jane Judge, writing in The Morning News, said:

"Winged music, music which lifted one into realms of pure joy, was heard last night when Rosa Ponselle, dramatic soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company, sang in the Municipal Auditorium.

"It is a golden voice and the audience recognized it. Few singers have been greeted here with such spontaneous applause as shook the building after Miss Ponselle's first number, a Verdi aria from 'Forza del Destino,' in which all the exquisite qualities of the singer's voice found expression. From the first clear, strong, high note which opened the aria, sung with assured control and a certain dramatic fervor characteristic of her art, the imagination and emotions were seized and one was swept along with the music. For Miss Ponselle has the too rare gift of catching up her audience with her and carrying them along on the sweet and passionate torrent of her song, so spontaneous and sincere is her art.

"Her voice is full of color, of delicate shadings and graceful cadence, a flexible, marvelous instrument through which her temperament may fully express itself and the songs she had chosen for her program were an admirable medium."

The recital tonight will begin promptly at 8:30 o'clock. Seats may be had at the store of the Cable Piano company until 7 o'clock, when the sale will be transferred to the Auditorium box office.

DR. J. W. M'FAUL DIES AT SOLDIERS' HOME

Dr. J. W. McFaul, 80 years old, for several years in charge of the patients of the Confederate Soldiers' home, died at the home Sunday morning. He at one time enjoyed a large practice, having an office on Marietta street. He is survived by one son, Daniel McFaul.

Funeral services, conducted by Rev. A. R. Holderby, will be held at the chapel of H. M. Patterson and Son, Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Atlanta Lodge F. & A. M. No. 59, of which he was a member, will have charge of the services at West View cemetery.

F. E. CROCKETT HURT IN CRASH OF AUTOS

F. E. Crockett, employee of the Pickett Plumbing company, who was injured Saturday on S. Pryor street just beyond East Fair street in an auto accident, had recovered consciousness Sunday night and doctors at the Grady hospital say he has a good chance to recover.

His skull is also said to have been fractured. It is claimed that he was driving south on Pryor street and struck another car going north as he turned to the left to pass a machine going in the same direction that he was.

VICTIM OF TROLLEY ACCIDENT IS BETTER

John Jean, 12 years old, who was carried to the Grady hospital in an unconscious condition Saturday night, after being struck by a street car on South Pryor street, was reported by physicians to be improving Sunday night.

He is still in a serious condition, however, having sustained a fracture of the skull. Details concerning the accident had not been obtained by the police Sunday night.

CHIROPRACTIC CLAIMS DENIED BY DOCTORS

Statement Issued by the Fulton County Medical Society.

An organization composed of hundreds of old line physicians of Atlanta and of Fulton county, through its publicity committee takes direct issue with the chiropractic propaganda based upon the case of little Miriam Rubin, of Illinois.

The organization calls attention to the fact that the Journal of the American Medical association has made a complete investigation of the case and that it develops the fact that there was absolutely nothing in the chiropractic claims.

Following is the statement of the Fulton County Medical society on the subject:

Medical Society's Statement.

Atlanta, Ga., March 10, 1921.

Editor Constitution: In the interests of public welfare, we wish to ask that you give the Fulton County Medical society space in your columns to refute the allegations that Miriam Rubin, 8-year-old child of Waukegan, Ill., who is said to have been "suffering from a strange talking malady," has "completely recovered" as the result of the efforts of a chiropractor.

The "cure" claimed for Miriam Rubin would be important, if true. The facts, however, are so thoroughly at variance with the claims of numerous chiropractors, as made in full page advertisements here and elsewhere, that we feel the actual facts should be given, lest the public be mislead into submitting to the "practice" of scientific pretenders, whose services might result in incalculable harm.

The facts we recite are based upon reports in The Journal of the American Medical association, March 5, 1921, pages 654, 655 and 659, these reports being based upon a complete investigation of the case. The reports can be read by anyone who wishes to refer to the American Medical association journal of the date given.

"Strange Talking Malady."

Up to the present time, the public has been informed through newspaper news columns and advertisements that an eight-year-old child was suffering from a "strange talking malady" that was so remarkable that "scientists" from all parts of the country were interested in her case.

Further, that "every form of sedative had been administered without improvement"—we quote from an advertisement—and "all the medical physicians and consulting specialists whose services were tendered" failed to bring relief.

Finally, that a chiropractor "pleaded for the opportunity to save the child, and gained consent of the parents" and that in a "few moments" the chiropractor "adjusted" the "second and fifth vertebrae" and "the talking stopped."

And, continued the advertisement, in very black type, "She has completely recovered and is as healthy and happy as you." so much for the fiction. The facts briefly are these:

1. The child did not suffer from the so-called "talking sickness."

2. The alleged adjustment of the spine did not "cure" the "sickness."

3. The child has not "completely recovered" and on March 1, 1921, was still dangerously ill.

4. "Every form of sedative" was not administered.

Inflammation of Brain.

The case was one of epidemic encephalitis, an inflammation of the brain, with temperature ranging from 99 to 103, and active delirium. Her improvement has been gradual and in keeping with the ordinary progress of this particular disease. The record of the case, fully reported in the American Medical Association Journal of March 5, shows that the chiropractor's "treatment" did not modify the course of the disease. The "talking" had ceased at intervals previous to his visit, and continued at intervals after his "treatment."

In brief, such medical physicians as Dr. Nesbitt, of Waukegan; Dr. Preble and Dr. Abt, of Chicago, continued their treatment, even while the chiropractor was "practicing" and the child improved slowly. About all the chiropractor did was to "practice" upon the muscles of the child to the extent that certain portions of her body became so sore and tender that she could not bear to have them touched.

On March 1, after the chiropractor had pronounced the child "completely recovered" and "as healthy and happy as you," poor little Miriam Rubin, her muscles so sore that she shrunk with fear when mention was made of touching her, lay in bed listlessly, eyelids drooping and with her right eye slightly turned upward. Her breathing was labored and her pinched little face and body were fearfully emaciated, with the exception of her lips which were swollen and spotted with fever blisters. She complained of pain in her back and abdomen and of pain when her limbs were moved. She could not sit up without assistance and the slightest motion of her arms as she would attempt to move to a more comfortable position would bring pitiful moans. She did not smile, and her spine was so sore and tender that she dreaded the gentlest touch.

That was the actual condition of Miriam Rubin on March 1 after the miraculous "cure" had been effected. At its best her condition was pitiful.

Even the fact that medical science was unable to bring about a more rapid improvement rendered her case pathetic enough without the added burden of the tender flesh just over the spine, where the "second and fifth" verterbrae had been "adjusted."

CORNERSTONE LAID FOR NEGRO BRANCH OF CITY LIBRARY

Nearly 1,000 persons witnessed the laying of the cornerstone Sunday of the Auburn branch of the Carnegie library, at the corner of Auburn avenue and Hilliard street. The ceremony was performed by members of the grand lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of Georgia.

W. W. Orr, president of the board of trustees of the Carnegie library, in a short address, reviewed the efforts made to raise the fund of $50,000 for the building. Mayor Key and Dr. Ashby Jones spoke, emphasizing the value of a library to the negroes in this city. Rev. D. H. Stanton delivered the prayers and Rev. R. H. Singleton presided.

The building is partly completed, the walls and entrance having been erected already. The roof and interior finishings remain to be completed before the building can be occupied, and it will probaly be midsummer before this work is done.

Under a law dating back several centuries, and still in force, no woman is permitted to enter the Paris bourse.

Pilaw of Poulet Family Style

Cut up the pullet as for a fricassee; season it with salt, pepper and paprika. Fry it in butter with one chopped onion and add thereto four ounces of rice and three peeled and chopped tomatoes. Moisten with enough white broth to more than cover and cook in a very hot oven for one-half hour. At the end of this time the pullet and rice are cooked, and the rice should be quite dry. Mix with a fork and dish with care. Serve tomato sauce separately.

CORDELE QUIET; NO ATTACK MADE

themselves confronted with the necessity of 'making' some news that will put us in an unsavory light.

"There were no union men leaving Fitzgerald Saturday for Cordele in automobiles or in other vehicles, and the events subsequent to the first announcement that militia had been called into service, bear us out in the statement that there was nothing to fear in Cordele or any other place from the union men."

Reports from Cordele Sunday were to the effect that quiet exists there, and as yet there have been no authentic reports of demonstrations against the strike breakers at other points on the line of the Atlana, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad.

The fact that the operating officials of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railway contemplate the further operation of trains during the coming week, is evidenced by the announcement of schedules for these trains, beginning with train No. 2, which leaves Atlanta Monday morning at 7:15 o'clock. This train, according to announcement, will leave from the Haynes street station, just below the Terminal station, and will run to Cordele on its regular schedule.

This train will return to Atlanta Tuesday morning, leaving Cordele at 6:20 and arriving in Atlanta at 11:30 a. m.

Schedule Announced.

The following statement regarding schedules was sent out by the A., B. & A. management Sunday afternoon:

"On Monday, A., B. & A. train No. 2 will be operated from Atlanta to Cordele on its regular schedule, leaving Atlanta 7:15 a. m., from the Hayens street freight station, one block west of the Terminal station. This train will return Tuesday as No. 15, leaving Cordele 6:20 a. m. and arriving Atlanta 11:30 a. m.

"A passenger train will also be operated from Lineville, Ala., to Manchester, Ga., and return on Monday, leaving Lineville as No. 22, at 10:41 a. m., arriving Manchester 2:25 p. m. This train will return as No. 21, leaving Manchester 2:45 p. m. and reaching Lineville 6:14 p. m.

"Passenger train service between Brunswick and Thalmann was resumed on Sunday, affording double daily service between these points. Thalmann is the point of interchange with the Seaboard Air Line railway for traffic between Brunswick, Jacksonville, Savannah and points beyond."

NON-PARTISAN LEAGUE OFFICERS ARE TARRED

Former U. S. Senator Burton Is Escorted From Great Bend, Kansas.

Great Bend, Kan., March 13.—Details of the anti-Non-Partisan league demonstration in Butler county yesterday and last night which reached a climax in the escorting from Great Bend of J. Ralph Burton, former United States senator from Kansas, and the tarring of J. O. Stevic and A. A. Parsons, officers of the league, revealed today that Stevic and Parsons were compelled to apply a coating of tar to themselves after their clothing had been removed. After they had been forced by the crowd of several hundred men to roll on the ground, their clothing was returned and they were told to leave the county.

The whereabouts of Stevic and Parsons, who are state organizer and state secretary, respectively, of the league, were not known tonight. Neither had word been received here as to the whereabouts of Burton, or of a Professor Wilson, another organizer for the league, who was with Burton when he was forced to leave Great Bend.

Burton and Wilson were on their way to Ellinwood, a small town in this county where they were to address a meeting yesterday afternoon. When they did not appear, Stevic and Parsons came here to learn what had become of them. The latter pair was then taken out of the city and told not to return. Later, when they appeared again in Ellinwood they were tarred.

Mayor Key Tells Why He Vetoed Gasoline Filling Station Plea

In a message accompanying his veto of the council resolution granting to Harper Brothers the privilege of installing a gasoline filling station at Gordon street and Lucile avenue, Mayor Key agreed with church forces opposing the station, that the probable noise would cause interruption of church and Sunday school services at three churches close by, and would also endanger the safety of school children by reason of opening a driveway across the sidewalk.

"The opposition is very strong in this community," said the mayor, "and it seems to me that where there are so many filling stations accessible to the public, and only a short distance to be traveled from this point in any direction to a filling station, the council could very well withhold its grant in this case in deference to the wishes of the good people of this community who protest against it.

Eloquent Speakers Present Educational Movement Aims

Aims of the Christian Educational Movement of the Methodist denomination were presented in inspiring addresses delivered by widely known educators and prominent divines Sunday afternoon at a mass meeting at Wesley Memorial church.

The principal speakers were Bishop Collins Denny, of Richmond, Va.; W. R. Webb, of Bellbuckle, Tenn., former United States senator and famous educator, and Professor H. N. Snyder, president of Wofford college, at Spartanburg, S. C. Governor Hugh M. Dorsey presided.

North Georgia's share of the $33,000,000 which is to be raised in the educational movement is $1,750,000. The financial side of the campaign was not mentioned by the speakers, but they stressed the value of Christian education, which they asserted that experience is teaching institutions under the shelter of the church must provide.

The financial campaign starts on May 29, which has been designated as an every-member canvass day, when every member of the Methodists churches in the south will be asked to contribute his or her prorata share of the big educational fund.

Other preliminary meetings in the district of the North Georgia conference have been arranged as follows:

Augusta, March 29; Union Point, March 30; Toccoa, April 1; Woodstock, April 5; Gainesville, April 6; Shadydale, April 7; Barnesville, April 12; Chipley, April 13; Cedartown, April 14; Calhoun, April 19; Atlanta, April 21 and 22.

MARSHALL WILL BE ENTERTAINED BY LIONS' CLUB

The luncheon of the Lions' Club of Atlanta next Tuesday will be in honor of Thomas R. Marshall, the former vice president of the United States, who will address the people of Atlanta in the evening at the Wesley Memorial church under the auspices of the Atlanta Lyceum Course.

Mr. Marshall is an honorary member of Lions' International, and was recently given an elaborate reception by the Lions' Club of Dallas, Texas.

The committee from the Lions' Club of Atlanta appointed to cooperate with the Epworth league committee in the entertainment of the former vice president is composed of Rev. Marvin Williams, J. K. Jordan and Frank H. Atlee.

The committees will make arrangements for his brief visit to Atlanta and escort him to the luncheon at the Ansley hotel at 1 o'clock Tuesday. An auto tour of the city planned for the afternoon by the entire club, who will also attend the lecture at Wesley Memorial church in the evening.

Former Tech Boy Head of Detroit Trailer Company

News of the selection of J. Mansfield as president of the Detroit Trailer company, will be received with a great deal of interests by Atlantans due to the fact that Mr. Mansfield was formerly associated with the business activities of the city and received his technical education at Georgia Tech some years ago.

Mr. Mansfield, who is president and general manager of the Mansfield Steel corporation at Detroit, has taken an active part in the present greater Tech campaign for raising the $5,000,000 to be used in extending the institution, being associated with the campaign committee for the state of Michigan.

Since finishing his technical education here a number of years ago, Mr. Mansfield has been associated with all the important development of steel manufacture accessories for automobiles in the middle west, and as president of the Mansfield Steel corporation, has built up possibly the largest automobile steel body-building corporation in the United States.

It is the plan of new company under the directorship of Mr. Mansfield to join the interest of the Detroit Trailer company with the Mansfield Steel corporation, which will enable the Trailer company to dispose of its entire output through the Mansfield corporation.

THREE INJURED AS CARS CRASH ON SUMTER ROAD

Americus, Ga., March 13.—(Special.)—In an automobile collision five miles east of Americus at 6 o'clock this afternoon, S. H. Baker, of Dakorah, Iowa, was seriously and perhaps fatally injured; Robert T. Hawkins, Americus attorney and member of a prominent family here, sustained two broken ribs and a bad cut over his eye, and Miss Eva Weeks was slightly injured. Mr. Hawkins, who was carried to the home of John Sheffield following the accident, will recover.

Early Sunday night Mr. Baker was in a serious condition, his lower limbs being paralyzed. He is 77 years of age, and was a visitor in Americus, the guest of his daughter, Mrs. Willis A. Hawkins, and was riding with the Sheffield family when the accident occurred, at a road crossing on the Rylander farm.

A car driven by Miss Annie Cawood, of Americus, crashed with the Sheffield car, driven by Robert T. Hawkins, both machines going about twenty miles an hour. The road at the point where the accident occurred is slightly obscured, and the collision may have been the result of both drivers attempting to get across the road quickly to avoid striking the other. It was said by members of both parties to have been unavoidable.

In the Sheffield car were R. T. Hawkins, John Sheffield, Mrs. John Sheffield, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Hawkins, S. H. Baker, Helen Sheffield and Jean Curtiss. In the Cawood car were Miss Annie Cawood, Mrs. Hattie Cawood, Mrs. A. B. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Latson, Misses Nella and Eva Weeks and Elise Chappell, of Sumter. Although the Cawood car ran off the road over a light embankment and had one of its wheels torn completely off, Miss Eva Weeks was the only one of its occupants hurt. She sustained a cut about the head. Both cars were badly damaged.

ONLY TWO DAYS LEFT TO PAY INCOME TAX

After That Time All Delinquents Will Be Subject to Penalties.

Two more days remain for filing income tax returns before the government imposes a penalty of delinquents, according to a warning from A. O. Blalock, collector of internal revenue for this state. Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock will be the last moment for filing returns within the time limit, and state collectors have no alternative except to impose fines for tardiness after that time.

This warning applies to all married men with an annual income of $2,000 or more, and all single men and women with an annual income of $1,000 or more. Deductions may be made by married men for dependent children and other lawfully recognized dependents, and by all persons for gifts to charity and churches, for interest paid during the past year, for bad debts and other legally acknowledged losses. Wives with independent incomes must file returns.

Extra clerks have been recruited for the income tax offices in the Federal building, to care for the last-minute crowd of taxpayers expected to storm the offices today and tomorrow.

The income tax may be paid in quarterly installments, or all in one sum. The latter method has so far proved very popular, the Atlanta office never having received so many full payments of tax in the past years. This fact leads Collector Blalock to believe that there is more money in circulation in this state this year than at the corresponding time last year.

$2,000 IS RAISED BY CONGREGATION TO BUILD CHURCH

After having contributed every Sunday for three months toward the erection of their new church at the corner of Whitehall and Cooper streets, the congregation of the Central Baptist church, by cash and pledges to be paid April 1, raised $2,000 at the morning and evening services Sunday. An effort to raise an additional $1,000 will be made in a canvass today and a rally at 7 o'clock tonight at the church.

With this $3,000 in hand the building can be made ready for occupancy, although it will require several thousand dollars more to bring it to completion. Congressman W. D. Upshaw spoke at both services Sunday. Rev. C. A. Ridley is pastor of the church.

Machinery belts have been made in Europe of braided or woven paper, built up on cores of cotton, sheet metal or a combination of thread and wire.

Society

SHOWERS FOR TODAY, STATES FORECASTER

Atlantans may expect showers today and tomorrow, according to the Washington weather forecaster's announcement Sunday night for Georgia. He predicted that local showers would follow the summer temperatures of yesterday.

The heat at noon on Sunday made it appear likely that spring had come and gone, and that summer had arrived. It was the warmest day of the season, and one which drew hundreds into the parks of the city and the surrounding country.

A SUDDEN CHANGE IN THE WEATHER

Is more than apt to be followed by coughs and colds, some of which are the beginning of serious complications. To neglect these colds is dangerous, and little short of foolish, when they are so easy to control. Watch yourself and your family and just as soon as the first cough makes its appearance give a few doses of LUNG-A-TONE according to directions and probably save a life of sickness, misery and expense. Lung-A-Tone is to be had at either of the Jacobs Stores and other drug stores.—(adv.)

JOY BROUGHT INTO HOME

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Restoring Mrs. Benz to Health

Altoona, Pa.—"I am writing to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. We have had six children die almost at birth. From one hour to nineteen days is all they have lived. As I was going to have another, I took a dozen bottles of your Vegetable Compound and I can say that it is the greatest medicine on earth, for this baby is now four months old and a healthier baby you would not want. I am sending you a picture of her. Everybody says, 'That is a very healthy looking baby.' You have my consent to show this letter."—Mrs. C. W. Benz, 131 3rd Ave., Altoona, Pa.

No woman can realize the joy and happiness this healthy babe brought into the home of Mrs. Benz, unless they have had a like experience.

Every woman who suffers from any ailments peculiar to her sex, as indicated by backaches, headaches, bearing-down pains, irregularities, nervousness and "the blues" should not rest until they have given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

Postponement Seems Certain In Cases Against White Sox; Players Are Ready for Trial

Chicago, March 13.—The case of Chicago White Sox baseball players and others indicted for the alleged throwing of the 1919 world series is scheduled to be called by Judge William E. Dever, of the the county court, tomorrow, but a postponement of at least thirty days is considered certain.

The state tonight reiterated its intention of moving to have the case taken off the court call, which would prevent its coming up for at least six months, while the defense was prepared to fight any attempt to postpone the trial for more than thirty days. That length of time would be granted as a courtesy to Judge Barrett, American league attorney, so that he could familiarize himself with the charges, it was said.

Claude Williams, Joe Jackson, Oscar Felsch, Buck Weaver, Fred McMullin and Swede Risberg tonight were ready to go into court, while Eddie Cicotte was expected to reach here from Detroit tomorrow.

Chick Gandil, the other indicted player, was not expected. No word has been received from Hal Chase, Rachel Brown, Bill Burns or Joseph J. Sullivan, charged with being the men who arranged the alleged conspiracy.

On the Screen of Sport

by Hugh S. Fullerton

Down in Washington the other day, while the new president and vice president were being inducted into office, I glanced around the press gallery of the senate, where reporters for all the great papers of the country were gathered. There were writers who bear a great part in the making of American politics and policies, whose written words carry weight wherever read. And I laughed.

It seemed to me that almost every writer there, of whom I had acquaintance, had a been baseball reporter. There was Gus Karger, now one of the deans of the writers of Washington, who was a pretty fair baseball writer when he broke in and who might have amounted to something had he remained in Cincinnati and kept on detailing the doing's of the Reds. There was Jim Allison, now one of the most influential political writers of the central west, who was an able-bodied baseball writer when Charlie Comiskey managed the Cincinnati Reds. There was Sam Blythe, whose early ambition was to enlighten the baseball public, and Charlie Michaelson, who, however, wrote everything and never would confine himself to sport. Heywood Broun, who slings a nasty typewriter, was a pretty fair sort of a baseball scribe, as was Ring Lardner, who after graduating into the magazine game, comes back and takes a post-grad course in baseball writing even now, when not busy with trifles like an inaugural.

There was Menken, who might have been a corking baseball writer if the lure of higher-brow work had not drawn him, and beside him was Henry M. Hyde, who wrote baseball in Chicago when Anson was cracking them along the base lines.

The slant of a man's brow need not adjust itself to his work to conform with the slant. Meaning that a beef knocker's thought may fit a college professor.

Altogether I counted more than twenty-five of the leading political writers of the country who were reformed baseball writers or who get their training writing about the national sport.

Some of us, of course, are congenital lowbrows, yet it is remarkable what a great contribution sport has made to the literature of the United States. O. Henry, at one stage of his career, wrote sport, and even in his later years boasted that the best yarns he ever wrote were about ball games in Texas. Jack London wrote fight yarns, and even after he became famous delighted in being assigned to cover a fight by some newspaper. Charlie Van Loan, who, when death ended his brilliant career promised to become the best writer of short stories in America, was a sporting writer, covering all kinds of sports and glorying in fight writing. George Ade was a baseball reporter in Chicago, and Peter Finley Dunn, creator of Mr. Dooley, wrote baseball and traveled with Anson's team when the greatest aggregation of baseball writers ever assembled accompanied the team. The aggregation consisted of Lenny Washburn, Charlie Seymour and Dunn. At that time of the three Washburn was considered the greatest. He was killed in an accident while riding in an engine hurrying back to write an account of a fight.

George Barr McCutcheon tried baseball writing, but quit when he made a hit with novels, and his brother John, famous as a cartoonist, and a younger brother, Bennie, all covered baseball. Rex Beach and Paul Armstrong both tried their hands at baseball, as did Edwin Balmer and Jim Opper, Jack Lait and Sam Merwin, Emerson Hough.

Every one else's job looks soft to the other fellow. Even a man digging potatoes probably is envied.

Perhaps the idea that watching ball games and writing about them is easy work has caused so many to try. Yet it is a remarkable fact that very few who start to report baseball will stick to the job long enough to learn the game and the men. I have seen hundreds who declared it was a "snap" who, by midseason, were willing to do anything to get themselves relieved of the job. The constant travel, the living in crowds and excitement and the strain of fast work gets on their nerves. If they last out two seasons they usually become afflicted with the habit, get the trade mark of baseball stamped upon them and never can get free.

Many of them are interesting fellows, and it is a peculiar fact that few of the veteran writers of baseball make baseball a hobby. They are interested in something else, and their hobbies take them far afield from baseball.

We had a little fellow named Jimmy Gilruth, who traveled with teams for years, and spent most of his spare time in public libraries and book shops in research work. He was writing a history of the children's crusades, and for years delved and searched for information and spent his earnings for books, to prepare a complete history of those pathetic pilgrimages to the Holy Land. Bill Phelon, whose peculiar sense of humor and practical jokes have made him one of the best known men in the profession, is one of America's leading authorities on the American Indian and the movement of the tribes. Tommy Rice, who deserted the law to write baseball, is one of the best posted authorities in the world on the West Indian and Caribbean countries, and on earthquakes and volcanoes. Besides that he devotes a great part of his spare time to the study of criminology and possesses one of the finest libraries in America on detective and criminal history.

MANTELL AND CELMAR BOTH READY TO GO

Today will see the finish of the training grind in the camps of the fifteen fighters who are to disport themselves before an Atlanta audience tomorrow night in the Auditorium.

There are fifteen wielders of the padded mitts who will perform at this show, including the five white youngsters who will try to punch each other silly in the battle royal.

Besides that event, five others are billed, and Promoter Miller avers that it is one of the most expensive cards he has yet staged. He spared no expense to bring to Atlanta Johnny Celmars, of Toledo, the youngster who is boring his way through the middleweight ranks, and Frank Mantell, the famous middleweight who flored Battling Levinsky twice and holds victories over Jeff Smith, Willie Meehan, Joe Chip and others. Mantell is now matched to battle Smith again in Montreal on March 21.

They will produce the fireworks in the main squeeze of the evening, over the 10-round distance to a decision.

Interest in Budd Bout.

Ranking close on the heels of the principal battle will be that between Battling Budd, Atlanta favorite, and Pete Shaughnessy, formerly of Atlanta, who only recently returned to re-enter the ring. No bout booked here in some time has solicited such a flow of comment as this meeting between the two warriors, which could very easily go on as a main event anywhere in the south with success. Shaughnessy is the veteran, a cool, crafty ringman, with two good hands, and a wonderfully clever boxer.

Budd is the slugging type, though a very good boxer in addition. He is the sort of battler who can win with a single punch, and he is banking his hopes on a knockout, for he realizes in Shaughnessy he is probably going against a cleverer man.

This is the fight that is creating the most of wagers have been recorded on the outcome.

Good Preliminaries.

The bout that will bring out the boxing enthusiasts of Auburn avenue is the preliminary of six rounds, with Battling Moon facing Kid Brown, a colored warrior, who opines that he will take the sparkle off this Moon.

Tim O'Dowd, who shows signs of developing into a good little fighter, will come to taw against Young Lynch in a 4-round preliminary, while in another of the same duration, Young Corbett faces Kid Wylle.

Five white newsboys will fight it out in the battle royal, which begins at 8:30 o'clock.

LOCUST GROVE AND BOYS HI OPEN SEASON

With only a week to practice before their opening game with Locust Grove Coach David is driving his Boys' High charges at a rapid clip. The Boys' High team has been practicing for some two weeks, and by next Saturday should be in pretty good condition.

Forrest Clark and Duby White will be the mainstay of the team this year. Clyde Wallace and Smith have also returned and will add a great deal to the Purple and White prospects. Clark will be seen at his old position, first base. White will do most of the twirling this year. Duby has built himself a reputation in the prep league that he can well be proud of. He has been chosen as an all-prep pitcher for the last two years and will run a close race for the same honors this season.

Wallace in Outfield.

Wallace will give way to Robinson, a new man, behind the plate. With this change Wallace will be shifted to the outfield. Hagan also looks good as a receiver. This will give Boys' High three good catchers.

Ellis and Mortensen are good prospects in pitchers. The latter is a portsider and Coach David is expecting great things of him. Ellis is a right-hander that shows up good in practice. These two men, along with White, will furnish a pitching staff that can handle any prep schedule.

Fight for Keystone.

Second base seems to be the chief source of competition. There are three promising candidates fighting hard for that position. Roane, Edwards and Schell are the men in the three-cornered fight, with Roane a slight favorite.

Charlie Smith has been shifted from second to third and is putting up a great brand of ball around the hot corner. M. Smith, of basketball and football fame, is holding down short. He is fast on his feet, a good fielder and a mighty good man with the bat.

In the outfield Ellis, R. Stokes, Monroe, Edmondson and Poole are running a close race. When not in the box, Ellis will most probably be seen in the field, as he is a mighty good gardener.

Wheatley Sees Rare Cracker Prospects in Way Athletes Stow Away Sunday Dinner

BY CLIFF WHEATLEY.

Bay St. Louis, Miss., March 13.—(Special.)—Arriving here on a day of rest for the Cracker candidates, your correspondent has been able to observe nothing except the appetites of the Frankmen.

Our thought now is that if these lads can play baseball as well as they can store away the delectable dishes that are sent forth from the kitchen by a corps of very efficient culinary stars, Atlanta is destined to make a runaway of the pennant chase in the approaching season. These boys can eat, and Sir Richard Kauffman asserts that they can play baseball.

For our part we are wiling to accept Manager Kauffman's word at least until tomorrow when the workouts will be resumed. According to Kauffman who is in general charge of affairs at the Klock hotel, the Atlanta scribes who have been writing beautiful stories in their offices at home have been away off in their statements that the Crackers were doing little more than snagging catfish out of the Gulf of Mexico.

Hard At Work.

"We have been working," Richard said today, "and the labor has done us a great deal of good. I feel right now that I am able to go in for the season's grind and I don't believe I'm the only one. I made a careful examination yesterday and found not a case of sore arms in camp which is good enough for a record.

"At this time of training, in almost every camp I was ever in, one couldn't move sidewise unless he bumped against an arm that was causing misery. The boys have worked out what little soreness did exist and the players are in splendid condition."

There are at present twenty-three candidates that are eating at Charlie Frank's expense and it doesn't take a Philadelphia lawyer or a baseball authority to see that there are more than one or two real ball players in the collection.

Frank Confident About Cracker Crew.

They were signed only after splendid recommendations and complete data has been obtained and President Frank is confident that he is going to find several stars among the score and three pastimmers.

The majority of them are recruits, mostly pitchers and catchers. The train on which Morgan Blake, of The Journal; Guy Butler, of The Georgian, and the writer came to Bay St. Louis arrived while the Crackers were eating breakfast, and, to get an eyeful of the candidates, the scribes entered the dining room; but their eyes greeted very few familiar faces. At one table were Dick Kauffman, John Suggs and Fred Graff, the remainder of the flock being composed of rookies.

Sammy Mayer is in Shreveport on a player-hunting campaign, and might come back within the next few days with an outfielder and a couple of pitchers.

Frank Schulte Is Not to Report.

The gardener will be secured to fill an expected vacancy as Frank (home run) Schulte is not expected to report. Kauffman stated today that not all hope of getting Frank had been given up, but the Cracker pilot held out little.

With Mayer in center, and a good left fielder from the Yankees, and with the other place to be filled by such promising material as Joe Guyon, Jack Driscoll and others, Schulte is not going to be missed to such an awful extent.

We are disappointed at not finding Cliff Markle, Gordon Powell, art Ritter, Joe Guyon, Bobby Stow and several other Cracker hopefuls in camp, but we are assured by Sir Richard that most of them will be coming in shortly.

Some Doubt About Cliff Markle.

Cliff Markle has a nice position in his home town, but he has told Frank and other Atlanta officials that if he plays baseball at all during the summer it will be in an Atlanta uniform.

Markle wrote Kauffman recently that the manufacturers who employ him are laying off workmen right and left and as his position is one that gives him a fat stipend the year through he does not care to risk it for a summer's fling in baseball. One can't blame Cliff very much for his attitude, either.

Powell hasn't recovered from an auto accident he suffered near Atlanta recently and fears are being expressed that this sterling little catcher from Winder will be unable to take his place with the Crackers.

The news is distressing to Charlie Frank, who has believed throughout the winter that young Gordon was due for a successful run this season. Until his accident, Powell was in the best imaginable physical condition. He had added about 15 pounds to his frame and was regarded as having the inside berth for one of the receiving positions.

Bobby Stow To Report Late.

We are told today by Kauffman that Bobby Stow will not join the outfit until the Crackers arrive at Lake Charles on the exhibition invasion which will carry the clan through all of Louisiana and a considerable portion of Texas.

Bobby is regarded as a certainty for the shortfield position and should prove one of the best shortstops in the Southern league during the approaching campaign. Art Ritter and Herbert Brenner are expected to arrive late tonight.

The men actually in camp here at present, are: Dick Kauffman, William Pierson, John Manners, Ollie Fuhrman, McClellan, Konemann, Phile Bedgood, Lafe Wheat, Chester Schmidt, Fred Vardman, Lee Bolt, A. E. Townsend, Bill Wilson, Fred Graff, Jack Driscoll, J. Smith, Mark Humphreys, Ellten Purcell, Orville Williams, Henry Brewer, Alfred Chipman and Bom Hathaway.

Of this number, Pierson, Manners, Konemann, Bedgood, Wheat, Vardeman, Bolt, Wilson, Humphrey, Purcell, Brewer and Hathaway are pitchers. Pierson, laboring under the handicap of an injured arm that will hurt his chances unless New Orleans physicians he will consult shortly are able to bring him around.

Bedgood Looks Like Jeff Tesreau.

Bedgood is said to be specially good, and certainly looks like a Pippin. He is built along the lines of Big Jeff Tesreau, the former New York Giant, so much, in fact, that Sir Richard calls him Jeff Bedgood. He weights well over 200 pounds and his hands look as large as hams.

"When they have mitts that big" a Cracker official stated today, "you can teach them to curve balls around trees which is just what we expect to do with this Bedgood."

The infield players are Kauffman, Graff, J. Smith, Ritter, Stow, Fred Smith and Herbert Brenner. The scribes are already talking combinations, and it is my opinion that this wouldn't look bad. First base, Dick Kauffman; second baseman, in case Ritter fails to deliver, Freddie Graff; third base, Fred Smith, and shortston, Bobby Stow. If this Ritter should prove as good as he is touted, some complications would set in, but the infield assuredly wouldn't lose any of its effectiveness by the changes that would be made.

The second week of training is slated to begin Monday morning. The first workout to start at 9:30 o'clock and the afternoon practice set for 2 o'clock.

Frank Reynolds, vice president of the Atlanta Baseball association, accompanied the scribes to Bay St. Louis and will remain here until the Crackers start their long jaunt through Louisiana and Texas.

OLD 'G' MEN TO PLAY 1921 BALL OUTFIT

Arrangements are being made for a baseball game between the University of Georgia varsity nine and a team composed of alumni "G" men, who played on the Georgia team while in college. This game will naturally be a drawing card, as some of the brightest stars that Georgia has ever had will be seen in action against the 1921 varsity. The personnel of the alumni team has not yet been announced, but it will include the strongest representatives on the "G" baseball list, and the Bulldog nine will have no easy task in winning the contest.

Managers Announced.

The new athletic managers, who were named in accordance with the new regulations adopted by the Athletic association on the recommendation of the "G" club, have been announced by Coach Stegemean to be Ashel (Bum) Day, team manager; J. W. McCrainey, financial manager; R. G. Dickerson, park manager in baseball, and H. G. Dasher, manager of the track team.

The Princeton system of selecting the various team managers is expected to bring out the best talent in school for the managerial staff, and to place the value of the letter on a higher plane.

Riflemen Are Busy.

The University of Georgia cadets are working daily on Herty field in preparation of the corps area gallery meet, which will be held before the 12th of this month. In this meet the Georgia cadets will test their marksmanship against representatives of all the leading schools throughout the country. Georgia will meet the following colleges: Auburn, University of Alabama, Little Rock college, Ouachita college, University of Arkansas, Florida, Emory, Georgia Tech, North Georgia Agricultural college, Louisina State, Mississippi A. & M., Davidson, North Carolina State, University of North Carolina, Clemson, Citadel, South Carolina, Wofford, University of Tennessee and Union university.

Belts Are Received.

Coaches Stegeman and White have received handsome leather belts, which are quite an improvement over the regular run of baseball belts. These belts were presented by John and Victor Allen, of Buford. Vic Allen was manager of the Buford baseball nine last summer, and is an old "G" man. The belts are the product of Mr. Allen's factory, and are an excellent addition to the baseball wardrobe of the two Georgia mentors.

Cinder Track Made.

Work is progressing rapidly on the track on Sanford field. Cinders are being hauled to the field daily, and the track should be one of the best in the south when completed. The first meet of the year is with Clemson on April 16, but a class field day will be held before this date.

A New York paper is responsible for the interesting estimate that the average Bostonian eats two and five-sevenths times his height in baked beans every year.

Better Basketball Year in 1922

BY FUZZY WOODRUFF

Preparations Now Under Way

The final curtain has descended on the basketball season, but it is with sincere regret that the audience departs. Never in the great indoor game's history in Atlanta has there been a year in which the sport received the general recognition that it has here since the Christmas holidays. Never has the game reached anything like its present popularity.

When the activities of the Atlanta Athletic club, Georgia Tech, the Prep league, the G. I. A. A., the City league, the Wilson league and the various commercial and industrial teams are considered, it is certain that basketball has approached both baseball and golf in the number of Atlantans who have actually participated in the game.

Of course, the big event of the year was the S. I. A. A. tournament. It was faultlessly conducted by the Athletic club. No open wounds or even scars were left by the furious combat of fifteen rival colleges, and it is to be devoutly hoped that the S. I. A. A. at its next meeting decides to renew the event, and that Atlanta is decided on as its location.

In fact, there is no other city in the south with a building large enough to accommodate the crowds. Certainly Atlanta's vast Auditorium was not nearly big enough on the night of the semi-finals. Financial success is always desirable, and right now only in Atlanta can this success be attained.

The thought will be brought forward with telling effect in the city's favor if the question of place is ever brought to a contest in the S. I. A. A.

A. A. C. Will Have Bigger Season.

What with winning third place in the national basketball tournament and romping through the southern season undefeated, the season was simply glorious for the Atlanta Athletic club quintet. Next season though should beat it all hollow. The clubbers have been brought to the realization that they must seek games with teams farther afield than the south before they can receive the proper sort of competition.

The object in this is two-fold. During the season just passed, the Athletic club games were not as largely attended as they should have been. The answer was that with the exception of the Georgia games—which were well attended—the result of the club clashes was always a foregone conclusion.

As a result of this easy sailing the club went stale, pitifully stale, and only the hardest sort of work put John Westmoreland and his followers in anything like shape for the national tournament.

There is no doubt but that the club will return to the national affair next year and it is safe to say that when it does go back it will be far better primed for combat than it was this year.

Tech Quintet Should Improve.

Georgia Tech got a taste of basketball glory in the S. I. A. A. tourney and liked that taste mighty well. When next season's call comes, the Yellow Jackets will accordingly be at far more formidable organization than they were this year. Hitherto, the Tech boys have tnought of basketball with a sneer, but this year they were brought to the realization that it is likely to become a major collegiate sport and that Tech is likely to be caught lagging behind—a thing that Tech is unaccustomed to and not at all likely to allow.

There's the foundation for a mighty fine basketball team out at the North avenue institution and the players learned a lot on their trip to Virginia. They can be counted on in 1922.

Not So Hopeful About the Preps.

Before the Atlanta preps can progress much in basketball or any other sport, they must forget the win-at-any cost spirit that seems to have inspired certain of the teams last season—particularly in basketball.

The preps will never receive the regard and backing of the sport-loving public as long as their games are marked by the hoodlumism that attended practically all of their major contests last year.

The old saying is that boys will be boys, not that boys will be bandits.

A strong governing body of prep athletic affairs is sadly needed and is mighty difficult to obtain as long as the men at the head of interscholastic athletes persist in the silly spirit of rivalry, which their boys are bound to ape.

Some Scenery On Golf Course.

There isn't a prettier natural golf course around Atlanta than the links of the Ansley Park club. The hills and dells, the brooks and valleys were all in particularly fascinating spring array yesterday.

Just to paint the lily, as it were, there was one foursome conspicuously present that boasted a Scotch plaid skirt, a crimson jersey, a pair of orange and blue stockings, and a pair of hose of the type that Eddie Cicotte, Joe Jackson, Buck Weaver, et al., used to disport themselves in until they looked under their pillows and thought of the heavily-mortgaged wife and kiddies.

No, gentle reader, all this scenery didn't appear on one person. There are costoumanic limitations—even in golf.

NAME SAVANNAH JUDGE CITY LEAGUE ARBITER

Savannah, Ga., March 13.—(Special.)—Savannah follows the big league example. Judge Walter W. Douglas, of the municipal court, has been elected president of the City Baseball league and has accepted. Each season from six to twelve local teams form a league and the city team games are of almost as much interest as the big professional games.

AL BRIDWELL MOGUL IN SOUTH ATLANTIC

Spartanburg, S. C., March 13.—(Special.) — Al Bridwell, former Cracker, Spartanburg's new baseball manager, is expected to arrive Tuesday from his home at Chillicothe, Ohio, and within a few days thereafter the men signed for this year's team will begin to report. Funds are being raised with which to complete the new concrete grandstand at Wofford park, where the local games of the South Atlantic league will be played, and everything is being put in readiness for the opening of the season. There is a general belief that baseball will be liberally patronized this year.

MOON DUCOTE QUITS PROFESSIONAL BALL

Mobile, Ala., March 13.—"Moon" Ducote, for years one of the famous football stars of this county, who was with the Mobile Southern association team for the past two years, announced his retirement from the game tonight. Ducote played right field for Mobile. He will devote his time to training college baseball teams.

JAPAN ALSO TO PLAY FOR DAVIS CUP

New York, March 13.—With entries closing here tomorrow, Japan filed its challenge for the Davis cup last night, making the eleventh nation to signify its intention to compete for the international tennis trophy in the 1921 matches. Japan is a newcomer in the historic competition, but the challenge was not unexpected. The remarkable progress recently made in tennis by players like Kumagae and Shimidzu indicated that it was only a question of time before Japan would be represented.

This entry raises some interesting possibilities in the personnel of the team representing Japan. So far as tennis players in the United States are aware, the outstanding Japanese players at present are Ichiya Kumagae, Zeno Shimidzu and Seiichiro Kashiro.

Shimidzu is now in India, and it is doubtful whether he can be considered a possibility, but, in view of the discussion his game aroused among the European tennis critics last summer, it would seem natural to have him regarded as a member of the team if he can take time from his business for a trip to this country.

PREP BASKETBALL SEASON CLOSES HERE THIS WEEK

G. I. A. A.

Team.	W.	L.	Pct.
Tech High	9	2	.819
Boys' High	8	4	.667
Gordon Institute	8	4	.667
Riverside Academy	7	4	.637
Lanier High	7	5	.584
Monroe A. & M.	2	10	.167
Ga. Military Academy	0	12	.000

The final basketball game of the G. I. A. A. for this season will be played here Saturday night. Tech High and Riverside Military academy were the opposing teams.

Tech High by her victory over Gordon institute has cinched the championship, so that a defeat cannot affect her claim for the title.

With Riverside it is a very different story. The Gainesville team is in third place, and a victory over the Smithies will take them to second place, making a triple tie together with Boys' High and Gordon Institute.

Coach Rawson's team is playing a great game these days, and if the local team lets up at any stage of the game the cadets are likely to be returned the victor.

The Riverside boys have won the last four games they have played, and it is a safe bet they will put up a corking good game in their last appearance this season.

Should Riverside be defeated she will finish in a tie with Lanier High school for third place.

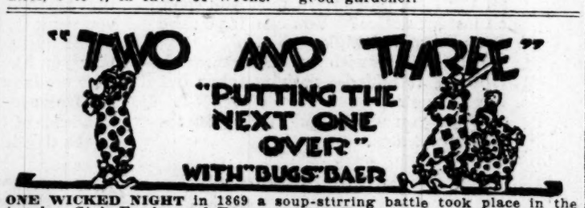
LOUISVILLE TEAMS WIN SEVERAL GAMES

Louisville, Ga., March 13.—(Special.)—The Louisville Girls' five defeated the Zebina Girls last Wednesday afternoon, while the Zebina Boys lost to the Louisville Boys to the tune of 33 to 9. Both games were played on the Louisville field.

On the local field last Friday the Tennille Girls met defeat at the hands of the Louisville Girls by the score of 6 to 4.

Saturday witnessed one of the most exciting games of the season when a double-header was staged between the Wrens Girls' five and the Wrens Boys' five against Louisville teams.

The final scores stood: Boys, 16 to 14 in favor of Louisville; for the Girls, 8 to 7, in favor of Wrens.



ONE WICKED NIGHT in 1869 a soup-stirring battle took place in the jungle. Gink Fowler and Tarzan, of the Yaps, met in deadly embrace. Tarzan had a wallop that gave Stetson his idea for modern opera hats. Tarzan spanked Gink with everything he had and some that he borrowed. At the finish they took Gink's black tie from around his neck and hung it on the doorbell. The next morning he followed his feet out the door. Tarzan was king of everything that had claws and fur, including the barber shop floor. Yours slowly, but surely, GREGORY LA CAVA.

MR. LA CAVA is but another of the erroneously plastered addicts who think that Gink Fowler was ever beaten in either a fair or a reformer's fight. Gink was never trimmed. No part of him was ever trimmed. His nails were never trimmed. Neither was his hair.

TARZAN OF THE YAPS was a supposedly rough hombre from the jungles. He was a man without principle. Gink was a chivalrous and honorable opponent. He conceded everything and was always willing to meet the floor half way.

NOW, THERE WERE always two referees in Gink's battles. One referee was used exclusively to count on Gink whenever he started bobbing for apples on the Queensberry rug. This referee stuttered. He couldn't get above seven without strtripping his tonsil gears.

AS A MATTER of fact, Gink never fought a battle without furnishing all the home details. His canvas was made by Ostetrmoor. He couldn't sleep in a strange ring. He had subway straps on the ropes so that he could hang better.

THE FIGHT WITH Tarzan of the Yaps was a laugh. Tarzan knew no more about fighting than a waiter does about tips. He was a great dog fancier, though. He had an imported team of the finest flat dogs that ever manufactured pains and aches.

TARZAN HAD MUSCLES in his ears, muscles in his eyebrows and muscles in his fingernails. He was all muscles. But he was ticklish. Gink's gloves were made of goose feathers. Every time he bopped Tarzan wtih a feathery punch. Tarzan would stop and laugh. It tickled him.

ALL THE AUDIENCE started laughing, too. They laughed Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and finally at midnight on Saturday they went too far and started laughing on Sunday.

THAT STOPPED the fight. It was against the Blooey-Blooey laws to laugh on Sunday.

REYNOLDS TO ASSIST IN MANAGING ANSLEY

Henry Heinz Made Chairman of Board of Operating Company.

Louis J. Dinkler and son, Carling L. Dinkler, who recently bought the lease on the Hotel Ansley and who are now operating it in connection with the Kimball house here and the Phoenix at Waycross, announce the apointment of Frank T. Reynolds as assistant manager of the Ansley.

Mr. Reynolds was formerly connected with the Ansley in a similar capacity, joining its forces with the opening of the house July 1, 1913, and served under the first two managements. He has resigned his more recent positions as secretary of the Georgia State Automobile association and the local Kiwanis club.

Another interesting announcement is that Henry C. Heinz, vice president of the Central Bank and Trust corporation, has been made chairman of the board of the operating company.

At the first indication of a necessity for additional hotel accommodations, a big annex with 200 rooms or more will be added by the Asa G. Candler Incorporated, who own the property, announced Carling Dinkler Sunday.

Louis J. Dinkler is now in the Orient, and will not return to Atlanta until the middle or last of April.

In a few weeks an augmented orchestra under Director Jake Matthiessen will furnish music in the college grill. Another new feature will be the addition of a large lift with a carrying capacity of eighteen persons, to be used exclusively for the patrons of the roof garden, which is being freshened up for servire during the warm spring and summer months, and for convention purposes at other times.

Franc Germain, a well-known and metropolitan chef, took charge of the kitchen department Sunday night, and will make many improvements.

David Parker, of Waycross, has been named special assistant district attorney to aid District Attorney John W. Bennett and Assistant Clem Powers in the prosecuton. There are a large number of lawyers from Georgia and Alabama here to represent the defendants.

LEADING NEGROES MEET TO DISCUSS CHILD PROBLEMS

A number of leading negroes of South Carolina, Alabama and Georgia will be in Atlanta today and tomorrow to confer upon juvenile delinquency and other problems affected by the big brother and big sister movement.

Governor Hugh M. Dorsey has appointed a number of delegates to represent the state at large, Mayor James L. Key has named a group of prominent Atlanta negroes to represent the city at large, and the mayors of Augusta, Savannah, Rome and LaGrange have named strong delegations to come to the conference. In addition to these delegates, prominent educators, social workers, ministers, heads of fraternal organizations, doctors, dentists, editors and prominent club women will be in attendance.

The exercises tonight will begin promptly at 8 o'clock. All citizens, white and colored, are cordially invited to be present. The responses to the addresses of welcome will be made by Dr. C. C. Johnson, Aiken, S. C., for South Carolina; Dr. S. B. Innis, Troy, Ala., for Alabama, and Professor S. X. Floyd, Augusta, for Georgia. Music will be furnished by the Morehouse orchestra and a number of selections will be sung by Morris Brown Glee club and the Letter Carriers' Glee club. The sessions of the conference Tuesday will be held at the Butler Street Y. M. C. A.

Cyrus Campfield, member of the board of directors of the International Big Brother and Big Sister federation and industrial secretary of the Atlanta Urban league, is the directing head of the Tri-State conference.

Yaarab Temple Band Devises an Initiation For New Band Members

Yaarab Temple band has instituted something new in Shrinedom which bids fair to be widely copied by the bands of other Shrine temples—an initiatory degree which all new members are required to take before becoming full-fledged members of the band.

Band president, William J. Stoddard, appointed Arthur P. Burke, Walter R. Bush and Frank B. Jamison as a committee to prepare the degree, and the cast to present it is composed of band members. Potentate Henry C. Heinz, who is an honorary member, being one of the ritualists.

The degree will be given on Tuesday evening, and a number of prominent Shriners from other cities will be present to witness its presentation.

Recorder Argard is receiving applications now for the big ceremonial session to be held on April 13, and all applications must be in his possession on April 2, accompanied by the fee of $112.

Changes in Method Of Paying Pensions Urged by Ordinary

A proposition that all pensioners be paid equally, to the extent of the appropriation, and that all wait for full payment, instead of some being favored, as is now said to be the case, will be submitted to Governor Dorsey by Pension Commissioner J. W. Lindsey. The suggestion for the change in method came from Judge W. P. Ward, ordinary of Coffee county.

In replying to the suggestion, Commissioner Lindsey said that the payment of pensions was determined by expediency, depending on the availability of funds. The requisition for money with which to pay last year's pensions was submitted last October, and no assurances have yet been given regarding the time when it will be granted. Commissioner Lindsey said. He promised to do his utmost to secure payment for pensioners.

Cotton Market Gossip

New Orleans, March 13.—While moderate advances were made in the early sessions of last week in the cotton market, the trend of the week on the whole was toward lower levels. Early gains were replaced by net losses and on the close the trading months were 4 to 15 points under the level of last week's close. From net gains of 40 to 57 points at the highest levels the market fell off to net losses of 8 to 21 points at the lowest levels. May traded up to 11.22 and down to 10.75, closing at 10.78.

In the spot department last week middling lost 25 points in the net results, closing at 10.75 against 41.00 cents this week last year.

Lack of spot demand of any consequence, continued pessimistic accounts from the Liverpool and Manchester markets, further financial troubles abroad and, on the end of the past week, reports of a new movement to curtail among domestic mills were among the reasons for the downward trend which at all times was retarded by the tendency of shorts to buy covers in order to realize their profits.

The early advances of last week were due to belief that the allies and the Germans would be able to get together in the matter of reparations and the selling that followed the initial gains was due in large measure to disappointment over the failure of negotiations and the subsequent movement of troops into Germany. After the middle of the week, however, a less unfavorable view of foreign politics was held and the developments in Russia were looked upon as likely to furnish something constructive to work on in the long run.

Investment buying made its appearance in a small way in both the spot and future departments last week, and not a few brokers predicted that this sort of demand would increase on any recessions into new low ground. In the spot department investment buying appeared to be confined to the low grades at the wide discounts which still prevail on them. Differences in prices of spot grades, however, steadily are narrowing and at the end of the week the average discount on low middling, taking the prices of the ten designated spot markets of the country, was 293 points. About two weeks ago it was 330 points off middling.

Too much rain fell in the belt to allow the weather to be called very favorable last week, and if rains continue this week they are likely to be a market factor, for the time is almost here when planting should be spreading over the more southern portions of the belt. In the early trading of this coming week much interest will be taken in the census bureau report on American mills for February. This is due the first thing Tuesday morning and the figures on consumption are likely to dominate fluctuations on that

Down Readjustment In Commodities List Continues, Says Dun's

While changes in wholesale prices last week were fewer in number and more moderate in range, the comprehensive list of quotations compiled by Dun's Review demonstrates that the downward readjustment is still in progress. The recessions during the current week, for the forty-fourth successive week, again exceeded the advances, the former numbering 59 and the increases 22. In this week of 1920, in contrast, the declines and advances were about equally divided.

A bearish government report on farm reserves of grain had a depressing effect in the past week, and some yielding developed in wheat, corn and rye. Heavier receipts than expected were a factor in the price movement in this quarter, while free marketing caused a moderate yielding in live hogs and beef. Fairly strong conditions, however, prevailed in sheep. In sympathy with the trend in hogs, prices of provisions liked firmness for the greater part of the week. Supplies of butter exceeded requirements and a sharp decline occurred in all table grades, whereas a much stronger tone was displayed by cheese. Strictly fresh-laid eggs declined sharply, and liberal offerings resulted in an abrupt fall in the medium and average qualities.

Apart from foodstuffs, the continued price unsettlement in iron and steel attracted notice, a further lowering of quotations occurring in both seel and pig iron. Most of the minor metals, moreover, remain at low levels. The cotton goods situation still reflects the irregularity of the raw material, with additional yielding in print cloths and certain other fabrics, and price inducements are usually necessary to effect transactions in the hide market. In leather, the price situation is largely nominal, with a wide range in different quarters.

DEFINITE SIGNS OF BUILDING BOOM SEEN IN REPORT

What looks like a definite sign of improvement in the building trade is found in the February building returns to Bradstreet's. These show a total expenditure at 146 cities for the second month of the year of $77,840,102, a decrease of 25 per cent from February a year ago, but a gain of 32 per cent over the month of January this year.

In connection with the decrease from February a year ago, it should be observed that the decrease in January from the like month a year ago was 53 per cent, and the falling off in December was 52.8 per cent. In fact, it is necessary to go back to July last year to find a smaller decrease from the like month a year ago than was shown for February.

An additionally favorable feature of the February as contrasted with the January returns is that while only one group, New England, shows a gain over February, 1920, only one group, the western cities, show a decline from January this year.

FAILURES AGAIN DROP IN NUMBER, REPORT

For the third successive week, commercial failures in the United States showed reduction, numbering 293 last week. This is a decrease of 18 from 311 defaults reported to R. G. Dun & Co. week before last, and is 120 less than the 413 insolvencies of three weeks ago. In this week last year, however, there were only 129 failures. Aside from the Pacific coast, where an increase of 13 appears, defaults in each of the geographical divisions this week are fewer in number than last week, there being a decrease of 18 in the east, 8 in the south and 5 in the west. Despite the smaller total of failures, on the other hand, the number of insolvencies involving $5,000 or more in each case is larger last week, 173 such defaults comparing with 169 week before last. The proportion of failures for $5,000 or more to the aggregate number is 59.0 per cent, as against 54.3 per cent week before last.

DISTRIBUTOR WANTED FOR GEORGIA
An old line automobile factory, doing a successful business for fourteen years, will consider applications from responsible business men for an exceptionally attractive sales and service franchise for the state of Georgia.
This car has a good distribution in Georgia and the distributor chosen will step into a field which is friendly to the product, and capable of producing immediate profits in both the sales and service departments.
The car is of more than average quality, and backed by one of the best equipped and financially fortified automobile factory organizations.
The co-operation and assistance given distributors and dealers insure steady year-in and year-out profits for the man who has or can build an organization in keeping with the car.
The exceptional merit of our proposition is such that we cannot consider applications from those who cannot command sufficient capital to make the investment profitable from his point of view; yet the capital required is not excessive.
We can give material assistance in securing a sales and service organization, capable of producing satisfactory results.

FOOD PRICES DROP FROM LAST WEEK, SAYS BRADSTREET

Last week's food index number, based on the prices per pound of thirty-one articles used for food, is $3.15, according to Bradstreet's, which compares with $3.22 week before last and $4.84 for the week ending March 11, 1920. Last week's number showed a loss of 2.1 per cent from week before last and 34.9 per cent from the like week of last year. Of the eighty commodities quoted, eight advanced as compared with last week, twenty-six declined and forty-six remained unchanged.

SIMONS CONDONES ALLIED DEMANDS

Berlin, March 13.—Dr. Walter Simons, the foreign secretary, delivered a ninety-minute speech in the relchstag Saturday, during which he gave an elaborate exposition of the proceedings at the recent reparations conference in London. The tone of the speech was noticeable for its extreme moderation. The speaker appeared to question whether the allied demands had been rightly estimated in Germany.

"I must say," Dr. Simons declared, "that when one comes face to face with our opponents in London; when one hears what the situation is in their countries and under what distress and cares they themselves are laboring, it becomes clear that their demands are not inspired merely by the intoxication of victory or lust for power, but that on the contrary they are the result of extraordinarily heavy troubles and distress in their own countries."

While stoutly maintaining the alleged illegality of the penalties, he declared he was strongly opposed to rupturing relations with the allies because "our position in the world is not such that it could be improved by a breach." Dr. Simons admitted that it was possible to get a better world perspective from London than from Berlin and thereby realize how general the opinion is that Germany is in the wrong and has not done enough to requite that wrong.

"If we now resorted to severe measures," said Dr. Simons, "this would only be regarded as confirmation of the opinion and we should lose all that good will we so sorely need to extricate us from our great difficulties."

Dr. Simons described the proposed levy on German goods as "a gross blunder for the allies themselves," because, he declared, it would drive trade with Germany into the hands of speculators and hopelessly impede the formidable task of restoring international exchange, which it would be impossible to do until the question of stabilizing German exchange was solved.

"In my opinion," said the foreign secretary, "the allied tactics will soon show themselves to be what they are—a politico-financial utopia and economic nonsense."
